ENGLAND'S POSITION TOWARD THE CONTINENTAL POWERS.

FRENCH SPECULATIONS ON PARLIAMENTARY SPEECHES—THE LATE CRISIS—THE NEW PRESS LAW—GOSSIP.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PARIS, Friday, June 4, 1875.

The city journals continue to discuss Lord Derby's reply to the interpellation of Earl Russell, and to speculate upon the probable object the latter had in view. We can hardly wonder that the French should puzzle their brains over this problem, since the English themselves are not quite sure what the aged statesman was driving at. If his object was simply to say something disagreeable to France, he succeeded but partially, for his remarks were too aimless apparently to produce much effect. Lord Russell is one of those public men who allow their private feelings to govern their public career, and who never can draw a very distinct line between their own antipathies and their duty to their country. It would distress him greatly to find that he had accidentally or inadvertently lost an opportunity for saying something unpleasant about France or the United States, or for saying a good word for Germany. He is one of the few foreigners who have been kindly treated at the Court of Berlin, more flattering attention having been given him there than he received in France, and he can never quite divest his mind of this fact. With most of us it is exactly the reverse, and we do exactly as Lord Russell does in a contrary sense, only we confine our adverse criticisms to saloon and club gossip, while he takes his into the House of Lords and into every detail of his public life. In principle the difference is slight—too slight for us to blame him, considering the amount of influence that he now has—and we are all rather fond of men known as "good haters," or those who stand up handsomely for their friends and squarely abuse their enemies. I once had an opportunity to meet the old lord, and found him charming—one of the best fellows in the world, (I ought to demand pardon for such liberties of expression,) if one does not take offense at first at his rather haughty manners and grow stiff with him. His haughtiness appeared to me to be all on the surface and not in the heart; he likes a certain amount of homage to his talents as well as to his rank, and, frankly, he is entitled to it; but in less than ten minutes he had affiché at least as many of his personal antipathies. I never in my life met a more candid and open-speeched gentleman, and there was, despite his age, an enthusiasm in his way of talking which made one feel, so long as he was talking, almost like espousing his cause. I certainly left with the firm impression that I understood him, and ever since that brief conversation I have been kindly in my judgment concerning him, while others have been severe. In the present case I really do not think that he meant anything more than on many a preceding occasion, and fancy that he merely seized another opportunity for putting his personal feelings on record. The French press is puzzled, as I remarked above, and the comments are extremely varied. Some hint that he is in the pay of Prussia, a very common accusation, by the way, while others fancy that he desires to reconstitute the holy alliance, and league all Europe with triumphant Germany for the purpose of finally crushing France. The French cannot listen tranquilly to such speeches, and they would have resented Earl Russell's language against the whole nation had not Lord Derby immediately poured out words that had the effect of a soothing balm. There has been so much discussion about this matter that I have grown heartily tired of it, but the fact shows how the old lord's words rankle in the French heart.

THE LATE CRISIS—OPINIONS.

There have been a number of curious things relating to the late crisis, but nothing more entertaining than the comparative examination of the opinions expressed by the leading journals in the different countries of Europe. Any one who looked to them for information and enlightenment must have found nothing but confusion. An example of the sort of news that we have had from the first is now before us. The North German Gazette grows fulsome in praise of Count Andrassy, and nearly all the journals published in Berlin yesterday morning accidentally struck the same note. It lauds his statesmanship and diplomatic sagacity as shown in the fresh proofs that he has given of his friendship for Prussia. All Germany, it adds, heartily thanks Count Andrassy for not having believed the false interpretations which were given the intentions of the German Government, and Germany will never forget the friend who refused to believe the odious insinuations directed against a neighbor. That "odious insinuations" is very good indeed, and of course the semi-official writer had no idea of being sarcastic upon England. And on the very same day the Vienna journals bitterly complain of neglect, and think that their Government was grossly slighted because it was not mentioned as being associated in the friendly remonstrances addressed to the court of Berlin by England and Russia. When the evening dispatches came in the Vienna journals must have regretted that they did not wait a few hours longer before publishing their complaints. It is now an open question whether the Berlin gazettes will withdraw their compliments to Austria for its attitude in the crisis, or whether the Vienna journals will take back their complaints because their country was not counted among those who believed in these "odious insinuations," and entered a friendly protest against the idea of another war upon France. The Journal des Débats is now very willing to let the Berlin papers talk about the alliance of the three great powers of the North, and the guarantees it offers for peace, since it finds guarantees enough in the new alliance, or understanding, if the other word is too strong, between England and Russia.

THE NEW PRESS LAW.

The Consultative Commission of the press has finished its labors, and M. Dufaure announces that the new Press law, the thirty-eighth of the series, will be presented without delay. The reason he gives for this unusual haste is that the general elections are rapidly approaching, and it is fitting that the state of siege should be raised in something like twenty-five departments before the people are called upon to vote. If this is not done, history might say that the nation was called to the polls at the point of the bayonet. But in order to do this the Government demands a complete control of the press, and for this latter purpose intends to submit the necessity of a transitory law to take the place of the martial law now in force. The sole object is to keep the press from taking an active part in the elections, the Government feeling that it can manage things more to its mind by confiding its interests to the Prefects and Mayors, now regularly appointed officers of the Administration. I have no doubt that this law will pass without great opposition, but do not see that there is any urgent necessity for it. Somehow or other the Police find authority for doing pretty much as they please, and for acting in a way which looks slightly arbitrary, if not more so. Two years ago M. Léon Renault began his perquisitions, and has kept them up with tolerable regularity ever since. A year ago he made them in the Nièvre with respect to the election of Philip De Bourgoing, then at Marseilles, and at other points, then at Paris, and more recently at Lyons. But after making these domiciliary visits, and seizing all the private correspondence at hand, the courts invariably decided that there was "no case." Yesterday the tribunals returned an ordonnance de non-lieu with respect to the perquisitions at Lyons. Immediately on the reception of the news Baron de Bourgoing demanded to see the proofs against him collected by the Committee of Inquiry, (the courts having returned a judgment of non-lieu long ago,) and to-morrow, after a year's waiting, will enter the tribune to demand an immediate report. There is a suspicion that M. Renault may be engaged in exercising his Police just to keep their hand in, for he was not at all disheartened by these failures, and ordered further perquisitions at Boulogne. All the journals of the Bonapartist and Republican parties have been visited, and the papers seized which were found at the houses of their editors. When this can be done without the authority of M. Dufaure's transitory law, I do not quite see the need of going to so much trouble to make it. But, as I have previously shown, the object is not to give further liberties to the press, but to give a legal coloring to such acts as those perpetrated by the zealous Prefect of Police.

JOURNALISTIC ENTERPRISE.

Speaking of the press reminds me of a great reform heralded by all our journals. In emulation of the Times, which has its private telegraph wire to London, sixteen Paris journals have combined to get a wire to Versailles. This is regarded as an evidence of journalistic enterprise, and should be so regarded had one journal obtained its wire, but as it takes sixteen to get a wire twelve miles long, I cannot say much on this score; but it must be remarked that this shows great progress on the part of the Government. The great obstacle is the concession, or the authority. Hitherto the Government has exercised a rigid control over the wires, and the journals have sent their news by carrier-pigeons. It does not require a great amount of intelligence to show that such measures on the part of the authorities accomplished nothing, and only succeeded in annoying the journals. In order to reach the desired end, an official should be appointed to examine the correspondence sent by rail, and another to visé the despatches forwarded by pigeons; but it has taken three years to convince the authorities that nothing was gained by refusing the journals the free use of a telegraph wire.

AMERICA THROUGH FRENCH SPECTACLES.

The Figaro tells a great many curious stories about Americans in Europe, and now and then I feel like translating them. Here are two that will be found of interest: "We have just heard," says the Figaro, "a frightful story, the hero of which is now in Paris. Three months ago a rivalry in love existed between two merchants of New-York, Mr. Fergus MacClellan, domiciled at No. 43 Broad street, and Samuel O'Deary, living at No. 49 Wall street. Both were paying attention to a young girl whose name we feel bound to suppress. One day, without notifying either of her lovers, she suddenly left New-York. Despair united the two enemies, who resolved to set out together in search of the fugitive, and to have an explanation with revolvers when she was found. One started for Europe, the other searched in America. Six weeks ago the former learned that Miss —— was with her father in Calcutta. He loyally advised his rival by telegraph, and proposed to him the following arrangement, which was accepted: They would play a game of checkers by sending the moves by trans-atlantic cable, the stakes to be the life of one of the players. The game was begun and lasted nine days. Mr. MacClellan, who remained in America, has just lost the game. Day before yesterday a despatch informed Mr. O'Deary that MacClellan had blown his brains out. Mr. O'Deary leaves for Calcutta to-day. It remains to be seen whether the young girl, the stakes in this mortal game, will have anything to do with the victor." The writer gives the very number of the houses in which these two merchants lived, and how could he have done that, a French lady asked me last night, if the story were not true? The other story can be summed up in a few words. A very enormously rich young son of a Yankee—I translate literally—who has been residing three years in Paris, has a great horror of wearing new clothes. This is the combination devised for obviating the disagreeable necessity: As he cannot well buy his clothing in a second-hand shop, he has them made by the most fashionable and most extravagant tailor in the city, and then hires a workman of his exact size to wear them for him for two weeks. The writer says that he can personally vouch for this story, as he has seen the working man who gets paid for wearing the eccentric Yankee's coats to a proper degree of dirtiness.

THE RIO GRANDE.

RUMORS OF THREATENED MEXICAN RAIDS INTO TEXAS—CORTINA LEAVES MATAMORAS.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, June 18.—W. D. Thomas, a guide to the Government troops, accidentally killed himself near Saltillo ranche Tuesday. A report that six Mexicans were seen in the road near this place has produced much excitement, and the people are afraid to leave town. Every gun fired now on the Mexican side of the river is followed by the report that some one on this side has been fired at. The latest sensation is that Cortina has left Matamoras. A band of his cattle-thieves—called cavalry—were seen above Matamoras yesterday.

SUSPICIOUS MOVEMENTS OF CORTINA.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Gen. E. O. C. Ord, commanding the Department of Texas, who is now in this city, this morning received a telegram from Texas announcing that Cortina has left Matamoras, though it is not known where he has gone. The officers in Texas, however, are suspicious of his movements, and it is feared he is bent upon further mischief. Gen. Ord leaves here to-night to return to Texas.

VALUE OF THE PROPERTY STOLEN BY MEXICAN RAIDERS SINCE JAN. 1.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Information has been received here to the effect that the value of the cattle stolen from Texas by the Mexican raiders since Jan. 1 is over $2,000,000. There are over 3,000 rancheros on the Texas side of the Rio Grande, who have come over from Mexico and settled in Texas, and are in sympathy with the raiders. The Texas authorities are so much incensed against them that it is feared an attempt will be made to drive them into Mexico; but the United States authorities there will endeavor to prevent such action, as it would only place them in open hostility to the people of Texas, and probably result in an increase of the depredations in that State.

VERDICT IN A LIBEL SUIT.

UTICA, N. Y., June 18.—In a libel suit brought by Samuel Gurnsay against the Utica Morning Herald, which was tried at Lowville, before Judge Hardin, the plaintiff got six cents damages.

THE COLLEGIATE REGATTA.

AMHERST PREPARING FOR THE RACE.

WHY THEY DID NOT TAKE PART IN THE CONTEST LAST YEAR—THE WEIGHT AND MEASUREMENT OF THE MEN.

From Our Own Correspondent.

AMHERST COLLEGE, Sunday, June 13, 1875.

It is notorious that the absence of Amherst at the last inter-collegiate regatta was on account of the locality in which it was held. The young men of this university had a wholesome horror of John Morrissey and all his works, and were unwilling to be quartered on an immoral lake only six miles from the flaunting Springs, where there was a club house! Now, as prudery, not to say hypocrisy, is a very uncommon article among the ingenuous youth of this nation, there were not a few who declared that the hand of the Faculty was visible in this declination of the Amherst rowing men. But such persons did the Faculty an injustice, for they had neither act nor part in the matter, neither openly nor under the table. As, however, the refusal was obviously genuine, the other colleges set their wits to work to determine what could have prompted it, being satisfied that the causes alleged were altogether too flimsy and thin. It was the general impression that an affection of the chest, or, in other words, a want of money, was the real motive, and this was widely stated among the crews. But Amherst, to disprove this, raised a fair sum of money and got up a class regatta on the Connecticut in the Fall.

My own belief then and now is that the boys desired to keep the regatta strictly to New England territory, and were grievously disappointed when the other New England colleges did not follow their lead. Such a foolish pretension displays very clearly the ambition of the institution. It is clear that for some time past Amherst has, so to speak, broken its shell and awoke to renewed life, in which high ambitions and a sense of the beautiful are predominant. The original college buildings are of the most frightfully ugly order, though located amid scenes of the most entrancing loveliness. From whatever position one regards the landscape spread before one's eyes, the prospect is of the grandest and most picturesque description. The time came when the Faculty, or the Trustees, perceived the incongruity of such structures, and those that have been erected during the past year are in perfect harmony with the surroundings. No university in the country has a finer chapel nor more exquisite recitation hall than Amherst. A gymnasium conducted on advanced hygienic principles, an ichnological museum, cabinets, laboratories, &c., were added in obedience to the demands of modern ideas. When it was proposed to throw open the regatta to all the Northern colleges, the challenge found the boys of Amherst full of emulation and eager to take a part in the contest. In 1871 the Amherst "Aggris" won; in 1872 the Amherst Collegians carried off first honors, and in 1873 they were pretty well to the front, though where they were has never yet been ascertained satisfactorily. Every college that did not consider itself the victor claims to have been fourth. Nor is Amherst an exception.

When one considers how near to Springfield Amherst is situated, it is easy to comprehend that they were reluctant to accept the change. It was an advantage to them making up for the many disadvantages under which they labor in training. For at Amherst proper there is no river; there is, indeed, a little mountain stream which some classical young man of weak mind christened the Io, but this is too small and too tortuous for training purposes, so the students are compelled to drive or walk over to the Connecticut River at North Hadley. The stream here is close upon 1,000 feet wide, and gives them a fine course of a mile and a half and turn. But as only a certain amount of time can be devoted to boating, the rowing men are compelled to hire a carry-all for their excursions hitherward, and this adds notably to their expenses. The Faculty neither encourage boating nor discourage it. They are like Sancho Panza, who said of his King, "ni quito rey, ni pongo rey," but they do not contribute in any way to the financial needs of the crew. Therefore, when to their large item of expense had to be added the further cost of going to Saratoga, one cannot wonder that the college was unwilling. Moreover, the Alumni, who were bred up by this Alma Mater in the old days of straight and narrow ideas, where the beautiful was rigidly excluded, are not in the habit of answering any appeals for boating. They save their money, and they vent their spleen at the same time by saying dryly that they don't approve of boating.

THE COLLEGE AROUSED.

But the laurels of 1872 would not let the young ambitions of the present year sleep, so, willingly and unwillingly, they fell into line, and resolved to send a crew. Mr. Benton, Commodore of the Navy, had long consultations with three men who were veterans, having pulled in 1873, and with Dr. Hitchcock, who, besides being Professor of Physiology, is also master of the gymnasium. Nine others were picked out. Mr. F. C. Scoville, of the Class of '75, who had rowed in '72 and '73, was unanimously compelled to act as coach; the Captaincy was given provisionally to F. L. Green, one of the three veterans, and a strict course of hygienic gymnastics was begun. They exercised in many ways, but the chief element of their training was a modification of the rowing weights, peculiar to themselves. Instead of pulling a ring attached to the cord which goes round the brass wheel, they fastened the end of the cord to a stout pole, about the thickness of an oar handle, the other end of which was supported by a wooden brace, on the top of which it moved freely on a pivot. The men sat to this exactly as if they were in a boat, and were bossed by the stroke or the bow in regular fashion. This undoubtedly helped them to get form and wind.

The next step was to practice in pair-oars and in the barge on the Io. By this time those who were considered the least valuable had been dropped, and the exercise on the water soon showed which of the men could be taught to row and which could not. Mr. Scoville, who, though very quiet and modest is nevertheless a very good coach, soon had them in such form that they were enabled to try the shell on the Connecticut. This, however, developed another grievance, for when the wind blows strongly from the south it is given tremendous power by being confined to the river channel by the Holyoke range on one side and the Mount Thoms on the other. It comes through the gap with such force that the surface of the river is covered with genuine white caps worse than anything on Lake Saratoga last year. The men cannot use the shell on the Io, because it is so tortuous that a coxswain is absolutely necessary, and they do not care to row too much in the barge because it unteaches the new men the racing stroke which is so difficult of acquisition. I went out with them on Saturday and we waited the whole afternoon in hopes that the wind would fall, but it did not. When we returned we adjourned to the gymnasium. The crew stripped and took their places at the machines in the following order:

THE CREW.

	Class.	Age.	H'ht.	W'ht.
W. O. Weeden, bow	'77	20	5.9	148
S. R. Johnson, port bow	'76	26	5.9	152
Larry G. Beck, starboard waist	'76	22	6.0	165
George H. Reed, port waist	'78	21	5.10	165
Austin H. Hull, starboard stroke	'78	20	6.0	168
M. A. Goodwin, stroke	'76	23	6.0	154

Weeden comes from Providence, R. I., has a chest that measures 39¼ inches, a biceps of 13, and a forearm of 12½. He has been accustomed to rowing all his life, steers admirably, and is very tough and wiry. Johnson is from Bellefontaine, Ohio, measures 38 inches round the chest, 12½ round the biceps, and 11 round the forearm. Beck is from Delphi, Ind., measures 39¼ inches round the chest, has a biceps of 13, and a forearm of 12½. Reed is from Moriah Centre, N. Y., measures 39½ inches round the chest, 12½ round the biceps, and 12 round the forearm. Hull is from Griswold, Conn., has a chest that measures 39¼ inches, a forearm of 12¼, and a biceps of 14. Goodwin comes from Wilmington, Vt., measures 39 inches round the chest, 12½ round the biceps, and 11 round the forearm.

With regard to these measurements it must be explained that Dr. Hitchcock first measured the natural, then the inflated chest, and gave a medium figure as the standard. Also the unusually large forearm as compared to the biceps is believed to be due to the special exercises which he introduced for that purpose. As Amherst had been the victor in one of the previous contests, and as the crew, though light, seemed to be a good one, I determined to stop and see them row. Their usual time for going on the water was from 3:30 to 5:30 P. M., but they were willing to row in the forenoon. So on Monday morning I drove over to North Hadley for the second time. When the crew arrived in their carryall we crossed the river in the ferry-boat, as since the destruction of their boat-house they keep their shells in an old tobacco-house on the west side. The wind was high and blowing strongly from the west, but as this did not make such rough and lumpy water as a south wind they determined to row. So they stripped, brought their shell down to the float and launched it.

I was struck, when in the gymnasium, with the lightness of the crew; when they entered their shell the want of muscular power of two of them startled me. Johnson and Goodnow are no doubt wiry and full of grit, and the latter, who is stroke, has a long arm and a wide reach. But they are far too light for a racing crew, nor do I see the least hope for them when pitted against such strong crews as other colleges are sending. The stroke was good, very even, with a medium recover, and took good hold of the water. As they rowed down to their starting point, about a mile down the river, I was ferried across, and, running through a meadow, took up my position on a point of land jutting out into the river where I awaited their coming. When they came into sight I timed them, and found they were pulling a very even stroke of about thirty-two to the minute. The west wind was blowing strongly on the broadside, and consequently the men on that side had to pull hard while the others went rather easily. They were steered well and commanded well, the bow oar being fully competent, but the boat rolled a little as was unavoidable under the circumstances. There, however, was a want of force in the crew which could not be overlooked, and one man in the waist pulled very much with his arms. Otherwise the form was good, and it was clear that the men had been well taught and well trained. But in my opinion they are not big enough for the companionship they will have on Lake Saratoga. They have a good stroke, they are well steered, they are good-tempered, friendly, gay as larks, but there is not enough of them. Coming down they had an accident through running into a snag which had lodged in the middle of the river during the night, and was just flush with the water. The whole bow was ripped off on the port side, and the boat settled down in an instant. Fortunately they were in the centre of the river where it is shallow, there being a deep channel on each side. Boats from the ferry put off to their relief and took their broken shell in tow. They bore their unavoidable misfortune with the utmost spirit and good feeling, and immediately arranged to row the same afternoon in another shell, which had been used by the University crew of 1873, and which had in its day suffered also, having come into contact with the shell of the Columbias, when both crews were practicing. The boat which Blakey, of Cambridge, is building for them will be about sixty feet in length and twenty-two inches in breadth. The crew will go to Saratoga about the 2d day of July. They have not yet determined upon their substitute, nor upon their runners, though probably Monell, of Brooklyn, and Barker will be the men.

TWO MURDERERS HANGED IN ILLINOIS.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., June 18.—John Casey was hanged at Paris, Ill., to-day, for the murder of his wife, by cutting her throat, in August, 1874. He made a confession shortly after his arrest, but afterwards asserted his innocence, and to-day addressed the crowd from the scaffold, saying that the people were hanging an innocent man.

At Effingham, Ill., Nathan Burgess was hanged for the murder of Joseph Robbins, a watchman on the Vandalia Railroad, on the 20th of last October, at Kaskaskia Bridge. The murder was committed for a two-fold object—first, in revenge for a fancied wrong, and, secondly, to secure money which Robbins was supposed to have. Burgess, this morning, persisted in denying his guilt, although he has heretofore published a confession which he afterwards denounced as a forgery. He died protesting his innocence, and without professing religion.

CONDITION OF REV. DR. LORE.

AUBURN, N. Y., June 18.—There has been no material change in Rev. Dr. Lore's condition during the day. He continues unconscious, and is able only to respond by a pressure of the hand to a similar act by his attendants.

THE AMERICAN RIFLEMEN.

THE ALL-IRELAND CHALLENGE SHIELD TO BE SHOT FOR IN PHILADELPHIA NEXT YEAR.

DUBLIN, June 18.—Major Leech has presented the All-Ireland Challenge Shield for competition by the riflemen. The Americans will compete for it, as they have been made honorary members of the shooting club. No matter which team wins the shield, it must be shot for next year at Philadelphia. This shield is competed for annually in Ireland by clubs affiliated with the Irish Rifle Association, four members of each club competing, two of whom must be eligible to shoot in the Irish Eight.

UNABATED ENTHUSIASM IN DUBLIN OVER THE AMERICAN RIFLE TEAM.

DUBLIN, June 18.—A grand assault of arms was given by the garrison troops this afternoon at the Exhibition Palace in honor of the American visitors. Several thousand persons were present. Two military bands played American airs.

A special performance was given to-night in honor of the American team at the Gaiety Theatre. All the riflemen were present. Great crowds filled the streets around the theatre, and cheered the guests with the utmost enthusiasm. Miss Genevieve Ward, an American, played Medea, and between the acts delivered an ode of welcome, which was greeted with prolonged cheering from the immense audience. The Lord Mayor and members of his family and many of the first people in Dublin were present.

GREAT FIRE IN DUBLIN.

EXCISE BONDED STORES BURNING—BURNING SPIRITS IN THE STREETS SPREAD THE FLAMES IN EVERY DIRECTION—THE LOSS THUS FAR $500,000.

DUBLIN, June 18—Midnight.—A fire broke out to-night in the excise bonded stores, which contained 1,800 puncheons of whisky. There was a series of tremendous explosions, and the flames spread rapidly to the adjoining buildings. The burning liquor flowed into the streets and ignited the whole neighborhood. From fifteen to twenty buildings in Ardee, Mill, and Chambers streets are in flames.

Vast crowds surround the burning district. The mob rolled several barrels of whisky out of the stores and helped themselves to the contents. The Police mustered in force and the troops were ordered out to preserve order.

THE FIRE STILL BURNING FURIOUSLY.

DUBLIN, June 19.—At 1 o'clock this morning the fire is unabated. The destruction is very great, and the loss is estimated at $500,000.

THE FIRE RAGING AT 2 A. M. TO-DAY—THE FIERY FLUID CARRYING THE FLAMES IN EVERY DIRECTION.

DUBLIN, June 19—2 A. M.—At this hour the fire is burning as fiercely as ever. The liquor carries the flames in every direction. Water is of no avail, for it only causes the burning liquor to spread. The Fire Brigade tore up the pavements, and attempted to smother the fire in the streets with sand and manure; but they have only succeeded in isolating it. The crowds are collecting the floating whisky in pails, dippers, and hats.

HEAVY RAIN-STORM AT ST. LOUIS.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 18.—Between 3 and 4 o'clock this morning the heaviest and most destructive rain-storm that has taken place here for many years, commenced. The rain fell in perfect torrents for two or three hours, and many parts of the city were inundated, the sewers being incapable of carrying off the immense quantity of water that fell. There was also a high wind, and the lightning was incessant and almost terrible. The damage in various parts of the city is very heavy.

The condition and resources of the company will at once be laid before the creditors. George K. Jewett, of this city, is a heavy indorser of the paper of the company, and, together with the commercial houses of Jewett and Pitcher, of Boston, and E. D. Jewett & Co., of St. Johns, N. B., in which he is a partner, will be involved in the suspension until the company's affairs are adjusted. A detailed statement of the assets and liabilities cannot be obtained until the meeting of the creditors.

ST. JOHN, N. B., June 18.—The failure of Ed. Jewett & Co. was announced to-day, owing to heavy engagements in connection with the Western extension of railway interests. The St. John banks hold a large amount of the paper of the firm. Other houses in this city, and in Maine and Boston, are interested. The whole sum involved is stated at several millions.

AFTER THE CENTENNIAL.

THE PARADE OF THE SEVENTH NEW-YORK PREVENTED BY A RAIN STORM—BOSTON DULL AND THE PEOPLE EXHAUSTED—MILITARY ORGANIZATIONS LEAVING FOR THEIR HOMES.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

BOSTON, June 18.—After a feast comes a famine. Yesterday Boston was the most crowded, most animated of cities; to-day it seems one of the most empty, most dreary. Two reasons were cited and accepted for this great change. In the first place everybody was exhausted by the exertions of yesterday; in the next place a cold continuous rain has been falling throughout the day, making the shelter of roofs not only comfortable but necessary. Most of the visiting regiments have already departed and all will have gone to-day. The Fifth Maryland, despite the rain, went on its excursion down the harbor, and it is presumed had reasonable enjoyment. The dress parade of the Seventh, which was to be the concluding event of the day, was prevented from taking place by the state of the weather. As early as 7 o'clock in the morning the rain storm of the preceding evening had recommenced, and though there was a clear interval of an hour or two during the forenoon, the day was plainly doomed to be a stormy one. At 11 o'clock the rain came down in torrents, the storm continuing with more or less severity all the morning. The Seventh gathered at Horticultural Hall, and waited for hours in the hope that the clouds would lift if only for half an hour. Early in the day Col. Clark called on Gov. Gaston, at the State House, and apprised him of the unwelcome state of affairs. His Excellency expressed his regrets at the unavoidable abandonment of so interesting an affair. He had, he said, thousands of applications for tickets to witness the review which he had been unable to grant, and was sure that the people of Boston would feel the loss much more than their guests. The Governor then endeavored to induce Col. Clark to remain with the regiment until Saturday, and have the parade take place on that day. This the Colonel was obliged to decline, as the majority of his command had business engagements that would require their presence at home. After additional expressions of regret the Colonel and the Governor parted, the former returning to Horticultural Hall, when line was formed, and the regiment marched through Tremont street and other thoroughfares to the Old Colony Depot. At 5:30 o'clock the train containing the regiment left Boston, to arrive in New-York, at the foot of Murray street, to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock. On landing they will be received by the Seventy-first New-York and escorted to their armory.

During the visit of the Washington Light Infantry, of Charleston, to Gov. Gaston to-day, the Secretary of the former presented to the Governor a palmetto cane with the arms of the two States engraved thereon. Appropriate speeches were made. During the morning Peter Hobart, Jr., of this city, presented to the Charleston company a finely-carved coat-of-arms of the State of Massachusetts, to be kept in the armory of the corps. The Washington Light Infantry of Charleston were entertained at dinner by the Old Guard of New-York at the St. James Hotel, and left in company with them, at 5:40 P. M., by the Fall River Line. The Veterans of the Seventh Regiment, New-York left here by special train at 7 o'clock P. M. The Veterans have tendered the Old Guard and the Charleston Company, on their arrival in New-York, an escort, and for that purpose will assemble at Delmonico's, corner of Fifth avenue and Fourteenth street at 11 o'clock to-morrow, and will proceed to the City Hall to escort the Charleston, S. C., boys and the Old Guard to Delmonico's, where they will be entertained at 12 o'clock, after which the whole body will march down Broadway to Warren street, at the foot of which the Charleston company will take the steamer at 3 P. M. for home.

The First Pennsylvania Regiment, escorted by the First Massachusetts Regiment, left on a special train, via the Boston and Providence Railroad, at 5:30 P. M., and proceeded by the Stonington Line.

To-morrow, by invitation, the Fifth Maryland Regiment will visit the farm of Mr. W. E. Baker, at Wellesley, where an elegant private entertainment is to be given them. They will take the train in the evening for New York. The Governor's Foot Guards, of Hartford, and the Philadelphia Artillery Company, were escorted to the Boston and Albany Depot by the Charlestown Cadets and the Pierce Guards, of Boston, taking the 9 o'clock train this evening for New-York. Entertainments, receptions, dinners, and social festivities have kept the visiting military companies pretty busy to-day, and to-morrow will see the last of them on their way homeward. The returns of passengers transported by the railroad companies yesterday foot up over 200,000, who were distributed as follows: Eastern, 50,000; Boston and Maine, 36,000; Fitchburg, 30,000; Lowell, 28,000; Providence, 22,000; Old Colony, 20,000; New-York and New-England, 5,000; Boston and Albany, 37,000.

GEN. SHERMAN AT CONCORD, MASS.

CONCORD, Mass., June 18.—Supplementary to yesterday's celebration in Boston, the citizens of Concord enjoyed this morning an impromptu demonstration on the occasion of the visit of Gen. Sherman, who came on invitation of Judge E. R. Hoar to visit points of historical interest. He arrived at 9:15 o'clock, and was met at the depot by the Concord company of the Fifth Massachusetts Regiment, with the American Band of Boston, and a large gathering of citizens. He was enthusiastically received, and escorted to the monument, where Judge Hoar addressed a speech of welcome, to which Gen. Sherman happily responded. After viewing points of interest he went to the residence of Judge Hoar, where a collation was served.

REPORTED DEFALCATION.

A NAVAL PAYMASTER AT A FOREIGN PORT SUPPOSED TO BE SHORT IN HIS ACCOUNT $66,000—THE NAVY DEPARTMENT SILENT ON THE SUBJECT.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Reports prevailed in naval circles to-day of a large defalcation on the part of a United States Naval Paymaster stationed in a foreign port. The defalcation was stated at $66,000. Nothing, however, concerning the subject could be ascertained at the Navy Department. Some of the Navy friends of the Paymaster confidently assert to-night that there is no dishonesty on the part of the suspected official, and that his accounts will finally prove to be correct and various missing vouchers be supplied. The facts, as far as can be ascertained, are as follows: The accounts of the Paymaster for the fourth quarter of the last fiscal year and the first quarter of the present fiscal year had not been received here when a draft for a large sum of money was presented at the Navy Department. This, in addition to the fact that there had been previous irregularities which needed explanation, excited suspicion that there was something wrong. Within a few days past the accounts for the first quarter of the present year have been received, but those for the fourth quarter of the last fiscal year have not yet come to hand, and hence there is much anxiety in official quarters to learn the particulars of the disbursements of the suspected officer. His name for the present is withheld, as it is not yet known that any fraud has been committed. His term of service abroad has about expired, and he will soon be ordered home to settle accounts, and it is believed he may then be able to make such explanations and furnish such vouchers as will be satisfactory to the department.

YALE COLLEGE—THE ANNUAL EXAMINATIONS—THE SPIRIT OF WORK WHICH PERVADES THE STUDENTS—THE DE FOREST SPEAKING.

From Our Own Correspondent.

NEW-HAVEN, Thursday, June 17, 1875.

One thing that I am very much impressed with, in looking about the college, is that everybody is hard at work. There is no mistake about it. It is the real thing. There is no place for idlers here. Work is written on the face of every man, from the President down. I met one of the younger Professors, whom I knew formerly as a Professor in one of the smaller New-England colleges, and asked: "How does Yale seem to you in coming here from your old place?" My friend took a long breath, and said: "I haven't had much time to think yet. The fact is, it is like being in an immense factory. There is a great wheel going around all the time, and happy is the man who can keep up with it! That is all that I can say!" Last evening I looked up a young New-Yorker, a Freshman in the Scientific School, whose father is now in Europe, traveling with his family. His son is to take the steamer next week for Bremen or Hamburg, I forget which, after getting through with his examination. I found him studying away with all his might. There was an anxious look on his face, and I asked him how he was getting along. "Well," said he, in a sort of nervous way, "pretty well, so far, but I go in three times more. I think I shall get through without conditions. But they are very hard here. Our class began the year with about ninety. We've had about thirty weeded out already; and they say this examination will finish ten or fifteen more."

There is a kind of fascination in watching the different phases of life in such a little world, where there are more than a thousand young men. My interest has been very much excited in two or three visits I have paid to a sick student. The first day I arrived I learned that the son of a gentleman who was in college with me was sick in the fourth story of one of the old college buildings. I went at once to look him up, with some misgivings as to the condition in which I should find him. On rapping at his door, it was opened by a bright, cheery lady, whom I divined immediately to be his mother. She had come from one of the Western cities to take care of her son, and had been with him some ten days. The scene in the room was worthy of a painter. The sick student had been just brought out of his bedroom into his little parlor, and seated in an arm chair, while a class-mate, a splendid young fellow six feet in height, was attempting to shave him for the first time the operation had been performed in some three weeks. The solemnity with which the tall barber went through with his work; the happy countenance of the mother as she watched the improvement going on over the face of her son, I shall never forget. I have had several conversations with her since, and her observations on college life, which she had had such good opportunities to study, seemed to me worthy to be given to the public to reassure the thousands of parents all over the country who cannot but think of their sons far off from home at college with a good deal of apprehension. She told me last evening that she was almost glad that her son had been sick, as it had given her such an opportunity to see what college life is. "I told my son," she said, "that I should not feel any more trouble about him. I am perfectly satisfied any one who has made such friends as he has must be a good young man himself. I have felt all along a good deal of anxiety about him, lest he might be thrown among bad associates and form bad habits. But you don't know what fine young men these are. I didn't know there were any such in the country. I should think their mothers would be so proud of them. And they've been so kind. They are all busy as they can be just now with their examinations, but they are always ready to do anything for my son or for me."

The fact is the outside world have very little idea how high the morale generally is among the students in our best colleges, especially in a large college like Yale. It certainly ought to be so. The students are from the best families in the country; and while in college some of the most elevating influences are brought to bear upon them. I remember that Rev. Dr. Daggett, who was some time ago the college Pastor, once told me that nothing surprised him more when he came to take charge of the college church here than the religious condition of the students. He said that he did not believe there were many churches in the whole country where, for instance, there was such regular attendance on the religious meetings of various kinds and such interest in them manifested. But to return to the sick student. I found that this spirit of work had invaded even his room, though his mother had mounted guard to keep him quiet. "The worst thing about being sick just now," said he to me, "is this everlasting examination. I have got to take right hold and make everything up, so as to pass at the beginning of the next term." Now, I have tried to give some idea of the extra strain which comes just at this time in college, in part, because it is very unfortunate for the men who speak to-morrow for the De Forest Prize. Prof. Bailey says they can hardly do themselves justice. They all rank among the very best scholars of the Graduating Class, the valedictorian being one of them. Their attention has been distracted by the examinations, to excel in which, of course, they take a pride. Then they are most of them selected, also, to speak one week hence at Commencement, and have their orations to prepare. However, such is American life—a grand scramble, and everything mixed up together. Only it seems a pity to have to begin so early.

SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY.

AN OUTGROWTH OF GENESEE COLLEGE—THE PRESENT CONDITION AND PROSPECTS OF THE INSTITUTION.

From Our Own Correspondent.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Thursday, June 17, 1875.

Syracuse University, an outgrowth of Genesee College, which was situated at Lima, in this State, is really about thirty years old. In 1871 it was removed to Syracuse and there refounded. A lot of fifty acres in the south-eastern part of the city is owned by the university. Here a stately stone edifice, the Hall of Languages, has been erected. This is one of the finest college buildings in the country. The institution is not yet fully endowed, but the work of endowment is steadily approaching completion. About $110,000 have been added to the treasury of the institution during the last year. Financial embarrassment is nearly removed. The College of Liberal Arts was opened in September, 1871. This college offers a broad and liberal curriculum of study. There are four courses, each four years in length. The library is supplied with works on physiology, history, and nearly every branch of literature. The reading-room connected with this is furnished with the leading dailies, weeklies, magazines, and reviews. The museum has Ward's complete series of casts of geological specimens. It also contains shells, petrifactions, ancient monumental inscriptions, coins, &c. There are about 150 in this college. The present Senior Class numbers 19. Courses—to take B. A., 15; B. S., 4. Male, 15; female, 4. The College of Physicians and Surgeons went into operation in 1872. It has the museum and library formerly owned by the Geneva Medical College. Every branch of medical and surgical science is taught. Lectures and text-books are the methods of instruction. There are about 60 students in attendance. The regular course is three years. The building occupied is in the central part of the city.

The College of Fine Arts was opened in 1873, under the supervision of Prof. G. F. Comfort, the author of Comfort's German series. The aim of this college is to cultivate an æsthetic nature. Although this is the first college of the kind in this country, connected with a university, yet it has rapidly increased in popularity. The first graduate will be Mr. M. M. Maycook. He is expected to take the degree of B. P. (Bachelor of Painting.) This college has twenty-two students. Other colleges will be added to the university as soon as circumstances will permit. Attendance on chapel exercises at present is optional. The experiment is not a success. It is to be changed at the next opening in September. It is often suggested that this is a sectarian institution, but such is opposed to fact. The members of the Faculty represent about half a dozen different religious denominations. The faculty of the different colleges of the university number about thirty-five. Rev. E. O. Haven, D. D., LL. D., who was elected to the Chancellorship about one year ago, has met with admirable success, and is remarkably popular. There are six college societies in the university, Delta Kappa Epsilon, Psi Upsilon, Zeta Psi, Delta Upsilon, Alpha Phi, and Gamma Phi Beta. The last two mentioned are ladies' societies, and Delta Upsilon is anti-secret. The so-called organ of the university is the University Herald. It is published by an association of six persons from each of the upper classes. It is a quarto sheet of twenty-four pages. There are about 150 in the preparatory schools of the university. The prospects for a large class at the next opening are very flattering.

CORNELL UNIVERSITY.

THE COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES—FORMAL DONATION OF SAGE COLLEGE AND CHAPEL—ADDRESSES BY PRESIDENT WHITE, GEORGE W. CURTIS, AND OTHERS.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ITHACA, Thursday, June 17, 1875.

This day has been, indeed, a busy one for those who have undertaken to attend all the exercises and entertainments. As early as 7:45 this morning those who had been able to procure tickets began to throng about the doors of Library Hall, where the Commencement exercises were to be held, and thus continued until even standing room could no longer be found and many disappointed faces were turned homeward again. At 9 o'clock some thousand persons being accommodated with places in one way or another, the President, Trustees, and Faculty, with many distinguished visitors, made their appearance, and were seated upon the stage. Among these visitors were Chancellor J. V. L. Pruyn, of the Board of Regents; Secretary S. Woolworth, of the same; Neil Gilmore, State Superintendent of Education; President Gillman, of the John Hopkins University, Maryland; Hon. A. B. Cornell, and several members of the Board of Regents. After prayer and music the first orator, Mr. G. R. Thompson, of Pleasant Hill, Del., delivered an oration on the "Different Phases of Religious Toleration." He dwelt particularly on several instances of this toleration in the early history of some of the States. Then followed an essay on "Sculpture and its Relation to Architecture," by A. W. Bulkley, of West Groton. The second oration, "The Sources of Milton's Culture," by F. H. Hiscock, was well written and well delivered. The third orator, F. P. Smith, of Granville, treated of "Rousseau as a Philosopher of the French Revolution." An Essay on the geology of Ithaca and vicinity, by F. W. Simonds, of Richmond, Ind., gave in popular form a description of the various formations to be observed in this locality and their causes The next oration was given by Miss Mary Holman Ladd, of Boston, Mass. This was the first occasion of a lady's appearing on the Commencement stage, and it will be sufficient to say that neither in regard to matter or manner did she disappoint the many friends of co-education. Her subject was "The Iphigenia of Euripides and of Goethe." After giving the points in which they resembled one another, she showed that the great differences in the character of the different personages were because of the differences in character of the nationalities of the two authors. Then came an oration by J. T. Newman, Ithaca, upon "The Religious Idea and the Obstacles to its Development." An essay upon "The Mathematical Theory of Probabilities" was of no small interest, showing how, in the events of daily life, the probabilities may be mathematically computed. An oration by D. J. Tompkins, of Fulton, on "The Secular Policy of the German Empire," was certainly a remarkably fine example of elocution and grace, being by far the finest delivered production of the occasion. The Woodford prize oration was then given by G. H. Fitch, of New-Brighton. His subject was "Nationality in Literature." This oration is the one which in the contest in May gained the Woodford medal, and which by the conditions on which the medal is given is to be delivered at Commencement. Mr. Fitch, it will also be remembered, is the gentleman who in the Winter collegiate contest gained the first prize for his essay on Henry IV. He compared the characteristics of French, German, and English literature. A fondness for rigid analysis and a low tone of feeling for woman were given as the key to the development of French literary life. Strong faith and hearty respect for woman were insisted upon as German traits, being illustrated by Faust and Werter. Judgment and good sense, exemplified in Shakespeare, were cited as the distinctive marks of English mental work. After some very complimentary remarks concerning the exercises, by Chancellor Pruyn, the President proceeded to distribute the prizes taken during the year. After this the degrees both of Bachelor and of Master were conferred on the respective candidates. Thus closed the morning exercises.

DEDICATION OF SAGE COLLEGE AND CHAPEL.

The formal donation of Sage College and Chapel by Henry W. Sage to the University took place in the afternoon. A great crowd had assembled on the Campus, where a stage had been erected; but on account of the threatening weather the services took place in the Chapel, which was crammed to its utmost capacity. After an opening prayer Mr. Sage addressed the meeting. He alluded to the laying of the corner-stone two years ago, and the presence then of Ezra Cornell, who had been so much interested in this completion of his original plan. Men's good works remain after them, as mile-stones to mark the path of civilization. He then presented to President White for the Trustees receipted bills for the total expenses of building the college and chapel, and securities in which endowment exists, to the amount altogether of $250,000. President White, for the Trustees, accepted the gift. It had always been a part of Mr. Cornell's plan of the University, he said. The speaker had years ago felt that some such refining influence as would expel boorishness from our colleges was necessary. Many a good teacher has gone to his grave worn out by the struggle with the barbarism of pupils. He spoke of the bad results of leaving young men to themselves as being overcome by the introduction of a small element of female society. He had examined colleges where co-education existed, and had seen many good effects of it, but no bad ones. Here the experiment had thus far been a perfect success. Not a single prophecy of evil has been fulfilled. It had been said that it would lower scholarship. One of the best Greek scholars of the university was a lady, and one of the best mathematicians was one, and he asked if the Commencement exercises had not proved a young woman can analyze ancient art and express good thoughts about it. The order of the university has constantly improved since the young women were admitted. At Ann Arbor the same thing had taken place. Remembering the disorder there in old times, he asked the aged janitor a few years ago how the boys behaved, and his answer was "You know they have the women here now and the boys can't cut up in the halls as they used to." As to danger to the health of the woman, the statistics at Oberlin proved that the health of the women graduates was as good as, and the death rate no higher than, among the men. I declare it as my firm conviction from what I have seen here that since women have been admitted, scholarship has improved, order has improved, and health not deteriorated. He then, on behalf of the Trustees, accepted the donation and pledged them to fulfill the condition of the gift by giving to young women as thorough an education as to young men.

Chancellor Pruyn spoke of the noble spectacle exhibited by a man who devoted the earnings of an honorable business life to the elevation of woman. He believed this gift destined to do an amount of good rarely equaled. He thought the improvements in the university showed an amount of work unparalleled in the history of any literary institution in the world. He did not consider co-education any longer a question, but independently of its abstract merits he believed that these buildings would remain beautiful monuments of what has been done for the instruction of women, and on behalf of the Regents of the State he thanked the giver. Superintendent Gilmour then followed, and on behalf of the friends of common school education, thanked Mr. Sage for what he had done.

REMARKS OF GEORGE W. CURTIS.

George W. Curtis alluded to this being the 17th of June, and asked what was the significance of the day. Not that the English lost a battle they never should have fought, nor that the mother country then struck a parting blow at a child she never should have alienated, nor that a new nation came into political existence, but that a new principle was then announced. This day stands for fair play —fair play between high and low, rich and poor, foreign and native, fair play for every man and for every woman. This university is now an American university, with doors open to a nobler and juster future in the person of woman.

The age is a searching one, searches all traditions gives them no rest, no more rest than a searching Governor or a searching Secretary of the Treasury gives a canal ring or a whisky ring. It is not true that ignorant women make the best wives. No, the more knowledge a man has the more of a man is he, and the more knowledge a woman has the better wife and mother is she. Prejudices are falling one after another, and an imperative murmur asks why, if women are united with men in every thing else, they should be separated in education! If women are not afraid of us why should we be afraid of women? If the young lady who that morning had simply and modestly given us her best thoughts, in clear, concise expression, about Grecian literary art, had stood before the audience in a rich silk robe, with neck uncovered and arms bare, and had sang somebody's song to somebody's music, would you not all have said that if she found an aptitude for that art, and chose so to contribute her share to life, she had the right! Why, then, if instead of showy robes she wears a quiet, modest dress; if instead of making her person attractive, she utters well-pondered and rich thoughts, and instead of another's song gives us her own mind, should we cry out against her right! When women wish to study there is no other place where they can do it but at a university. A university is not a school nor an academy, but a place where great resources, libraries, collections, museums, teachers are brought together, and the best facilities afforded. You may send professors from Oxford and Cambridge to teach the ladies at Barton College, but you cannot send the university. Humboldt taught only in a university, Agassiz the same, Guizot the same. You cannot duplicate universities. You cannot make one Cornell for men, another for women. Mr. Sage is to be commended in that instead of attempting a separate work, he threw all his aid where the work had already been begun. Faith in the human heart and its impulses, hope in the great American future, and charity, without which no good can be done, all lie at the bottom of the enterprise, and promise a shower of blessings upon the seed.

Addresses by Hon. Erastus Brooks, by Samuel B. Woolworth, Secretary of the Board of Regents, and by President Gilman, of the John Hopkins University at Baltimore, followed, after which the meeting was dismissed.

From 8 to 10 in the evening, President White gave receptions to the Trustees, Faculty, graduating class, students, citizens and visitors. This was a very pleasant affair, and very well attended. Among those present were Mr. G. W. Curtis, Hon. A. Bloomell, Neil Gilmour, and others, now visiting here. At 10 the hop commenced. This took place in Wilga's Opera-house, which was decorated with flowers, monograms and pictures.

WEST POINT.

THE ALUMNI DINNER AND REUNION—CONTINUATION OF THE EXAMINATIONS—VISITORS DESERTING THE POINT.

From Our Own Correspondent.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Friday, June 18, 1875.

The Alumni dinner last night at this place was one likely to be remembered forever by those officers, representatives of each State in the Union, who were at it. The old men of the Army say they never saw anything like the fraternal feelings evinced by the alienated graduates reunited for the first time in sixteen years on the 100th anniversary of Bunker Hill. Gens. Cullum and Frank Smith, graduates of the Class of '35, and stern foes ever since the dawn of secession, met each other on the stoop and were made to join hands and be as of old, fellow-classmen and friends. When these two were reconciled the widest part of the breach between the Southern and Northern Alumni of West Point was deemed to have been bridged, and the utmost good-fellowship prevailed among the old-time antagonists. The dinner was a fitting termination to the military festivities, which are now practically ended for 1875. The examinations still continue. The fourth class was heard in mathematics, and will be kept busy for a day or two before the Academic Board. After their examination comes that of the second class in tactics, which will bring its test to a close for this year. It is said of the second class now that few better than it have ever been known at West Point. The examinations of the "plebs" will not begin until those of the classes above named are concluded. Then, of the large number appointed, no doubt several will be rejected. Already the lads have begun to report to the Adjutant, and all of them will have put in an appearance by to-morrow night, the 20th being the last day set down in orders for their arrival at the academy. For those who shall prove themselves qualified to become cadets the work of the course will begin at once. They will be trained to walk and look like soldiers, and to lay aside their gawky demeanors. Most of the lads that have arrived are fine, sturdy fellows, and although not so tall generally as the members of last year's fourth class, are fair specimens of young America.

The Class of '75 did not leave the "Point" in a body on the day they were relieved from duty. Fifteen of them remained at the Post Hotel to witness the reunion of the Northern and Southern Alumni, and to be present at the hop which was to be given at Cozzens' Hotel last night. They were free men and able to show their friends the sights at West Point, and they were to be met everywhere, and were easily recognized, despite their fashionable civil attire. In the afternoon there was a sea-coast battery drill, and the enormous pieces were fired at a target about 1,400 yards distant in point-blank range. The Alumni, ladies, and liberated graduates watched the great gun practice with special interest, as it was very accurate, the target being pierced several times. But the rain, which began to fall about 6 o'clock, cut short the drill and broke up the assemblage on the green and hill-sides. To-day the guests began to disperse, and many officers went on furlough, according to annual custom, so that every train going south and north relieved West Point of many of its military visitors and their friends until few of the vast throng to be seen here yesterday remain. The season at the lower hotel, however, is just beginning to brighten, and the people are coming from different parts of the country to the "big house on the bluff" overlooking "Benny Havens" historic nest on the beach beneath. There is much to be seen and amuse in West Point. There are the evening parades, excursions up the mountains to Fort Putnam, the Crow's Nest or the Farm, rowing matches on the placid river, and soirees dansantes for those who like them. Life at West Point under these circumstances is very endurable, and finds many who prefer it to existence in almost any other Summer resort in the State.

PENNSYLVANIA MILITARY ACADEMY

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES—THE ALUMNI MEETING AND ADDRESSES.

From Our Own Correspondent.

CARLISLE, Penn., Thursday, June 17, 1875.

The Alumni meeting was held on Thursday afternoon, and was well attended, members being present from points so remote as St. Louis and the Harvard Law School. The address was made by H. C. Brighman, C. E., of Pittsburg, a graduate of the Class of '68. Col. Thomas Wentworth Higginson lectured in the evening, his subject being "Aristocracy of the Dollar." On Friday morning the Board of Trustees held their annual meeting and conferred the degree of Civil Engineer upon the eighteen members of the graduating class who had completed the four years' course in engineering; the degree of A. B. was also conferred upon Cadet De Golyer, of Cincinnati, who, in addition to the scientific studies, had pursued the very full classical course. The degree of A. M. was conferred upon Mr. William J. Harvey, President of the Board of Education of Chester, and upon Mr. Perry M. Washabaugh. Both of these gentlemen had received their classical education at the academy, and are now rising members of the bar of Delaware County, in this State. Col. George Patten, a graduate of the United States Military Academy, the head of the mathematical department of this school, and for many years its Vice President, received the degree of Ph. D. The speeches were quite up to the level of commencement performances generally, and were much applauded. The military exercises, under the control of Lieut. G. P. Colton, United States Artillery, the military instructor detailed to the academy by the War Department, were performed upon the fine parade ground of the school, in the presence of a large concourse of interested visitors.

THE CHARLIER INSTITUTE.

The closing exercises of the Charlier Institute, in West 58th and 59th streets, attracted last evening a very large assemblage. Quite 1,500 persons must have witnessed the proceedings and inspected the building. Probably as many thousand would gladly avail themselves of the opportunity to visit the establishment, if, by any chance, it were thrown open to the public for a day or so. An hour thus passed could scarcely be better employed, for the Charlier Institute is literally a perfect school-house. This is no time to describe it in full, but an outline of its design should at all events be given. Built about a year ago, at an outlay of $400,000, it faces Central Park, and has five stories and a mansard roof. Two staircases, running from the basement to the top of the premises, are of Nova Scotia stone, and cost $14,000 each. Within are study-rooms; reciting-rooms; a magnificent gymnasium, fifty feet square, and twenty-four in height; dormitories, in which each occupant has a small compartment for himself; an elevator, several fine refectories, a hospital, and, in brief, every element of as complete a school-house as a twenty-five years' experience can devise, not forgetting a chapel fifty feet square and about twenty-six feet in height, with 600 iron arm-chairs and a large organ. Two hundred pupils can easily find accommodation in the spacious model institute which M. Charlier owns and directs, and the accommodation, to sum it all up, is of an order such as no place of the kind, the world over, offers to its tenants. The numerous assemblage last night strayed over the building, which was lighted a giorno, as soon as the proceedings on the programme terminated. These included music by Gaffré's Band, singing by the pupils, a prayer by Rev. Dr. G. Jarvis Geer, the annual address by Prof. Charlier, an address by Chancellor Crosby, other speeches, and the distribution of prizes and diplomas. Later on M. Charlier held an informal reception in the parlors of the institute, and received hearty congratulations upon the crowning result of the labors of a quarter of a century; while Prof. Charles Villa, Principal of the French department, did the honors of the house with exceeding amenity to the professional guests.

PRIZE-SPEAKING AT YALE.

NEW-HAVEN, Conn., June 18.—The De Forest prize speaking at Yale College took place to-day. The gold medal was divided between Carl T. Chester, of Buffalo, N. Y., and Henry S. Gulliver, of Norwich, Conn. The two have roomed together throughout their college course, and divided a similar prize in the Junior year.

ORANGE COUNTY PROHIBITIONIST CONVENTION.

Y., June 18.—At the Orange County Prohibitionist Convention, held here to-day, the following were elected delegates to the State Convention to be held at Syracuse next week: From the First Assembly District, Thomas Caldwell, Samuel C. Smith, George Stevenson, Richard Caldwell, E. K. Cole; from the Second District, Chester Belden, D. F. Willing, and Rev. Messrs. David McCartney, S. J. Rogers, and V. N. Travers.

ALBANY.

BILLS ACTED ON BY THE GOVERNOR.

THE NEW-YORK ALDERMEN'S RAPID TRANSIT BILL AND THE ADULTERATION OF MILK BILL AND OTHER BILLS VETOED.

ALBANY, June 18.—Gov. Tilden has vetoed the following bills:

Senate Bill No. 303.—Entitled "An act to authorize cities to provide railways for rapid transit of persons and property, and to create corporations for that purpose."

Not approved.

Three bills providing for rapid transit were before me on the adjournment of the Legislature.

The one amending the acts relating to the New-York Elevated Railroad was carefully considered. In its present form, it is free from the objections alleged against the bill of last year. The apprehension that it might allow of the use of the boulevards has been removed by provisions inserted in the general law, commonly known as the Husted bill, and by acts done or to be done under those provisions. On the whole, the bill seems to be as free from just objections as such a measure is ever likely to be. The road, so far as now constructed, is used with great convenience and advantage by many of our most intelligent citizens, whose opinions, founded on their own experience, have been submitted to me. The bill has been signed in advance of the general bill, in order that its provisions should be controlled by the general law wherever the two are in conflict.

In choosing between the two general bills designed to provide for rapid transit, I have no hesitation in preferring Assembly bill No. 739, commonly known as the Husted bill; nor have I any doubt that it is inexpedient to establish two general systems.

It is therefore necessary to disapprove of this bill, independently of the grave objections of a specific nature which exist against it.

Senate Bill No. 185.—Entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to amend chapter 467 of the Laws of 1862, entitled 'An act to prevent the adulteration of milk, and prevent traffic in impure and unwholesome milk,''' passed May 2, 1864."

Not approved.

This bill re-enacts section 4 of the act of 1862, omitting the prohibition of the sale of swill-milk. The Board of Health of the City of New-York apprehend that it might legalize the dilution of milk by water. It certainly would legalize the sale of milk obtained from cows fed on distillery slops. Protests against such an enactment have been received from the Board of Health of New-York, from the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, from the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and from the Sanitary Superintendent of Brooklyn. Extracts from medical authorities opposed to the use of such milk have been submitted. On the other hand, certificates from eminent chemists favoring such use, and fortifying their opinions by analyses, have also been submitted.

It is enough to say that a strong and general public judgment adverse to allowing the sale of such milk was formed some years ago, and there is now no reason to suppose that judgment has been changed. The subject was the occasion of an extraordinary excitement among the people of New-York and Brooklyn, which was appeased by the enactment of the prohibition now proposed to be repealed. If, in any respect, that legislation can be safely or wisely modified or qualified, the change should be made only after the fullest knowledge by the public, the most ample opportunity for discussion, and the most careful consideration by the authorities having the care of the public health. Nothing of this kind has been done. This bill, if it should become a law, would be a total surprise to the people. It cannot receive the Executive sanction.

Assembly Bills Nos. 186, 247, 488, 489, 607, amending chapter 721 of the Laws of 1871, entitled "An act to amend and consolidate the several acts relating to the preservation of moose, wild deer, birds, and fish;" No. 312, relating to fishing in Tonawanda Creek, in the County of Wyoming; No. 640, relating to fishing in the waters of Clinton County, except Lake Champlain, and No. 718, relating to fishing in the Niagara River within the County of Erie.

Not approved.

Although a general law was passed so late as 1871, regulating the killing of game and the taking of fish, the whole subject is now in the greatest confusion, owing to the numerous and ill-considered acts which have since been enacted.

The act passed at the late session extending the powers of boards of Supervisors confers upon these boards the power of regulating these subjects within their respective counties. It may be desirable that, where a body of water is situated in more than one county, the Legislature of the State should prescribe the regulations for fishing therein. No one of the bills now before me is, however, confined in its operation to such a case.

The belief that the power is likely to be as well exercised by the boards of Supervisors as by the Legislature of the State, is strengthened by the fact that four of these bills prescribe the rules for fishing in Oneida Lake, each in a manner different from the other, so that if they were all signed the gentle fisherman would have to inquire which was signed last in order to ascertain by what rule to govern his conduct.

Assembly Bill No. 617.—Entitled, "An act supplemental to chapter 319 of the Laws of 1848, entitled 'An act for the incorporation of benevolent, charitable, scientific and missionary societies,' and the several acts amendatory thereof."

Not approved.

The act of 1848, as its title implies, is a general act for the incorporation of benevolent, charitable, scientific, and missionary societies, and its provisions have, by several amendatory acts, been extended, so as to include corporations for various other purposes.

By this bill, any two or more of such corporations are authorized to consolidate themselves.

Thus a benevolent society may consolidate with a scientific society, or a missionary society with a charitable society. The members of one society, by becoming members of another, in sufficient numbers to control its organization, may absorb the property and franchises of the latter, and thus frustrate the purposes of those who have contributed to its support.

It is the evident intent of the act of 1848, that a corporation formed thereunder shall exercise the functions of only one of the classes of corporations therein provided for. This bill allows the existence of a corporation, having for its objects all the purposes for which any of the numerous classes of corporations provided for in the act of 1848, and the acts amendatory thereof, may be formed to promote.

BILLS SIGNED.

ALBANY, June 18.—The following additional bills have been signed by the Governor:

To authorize the New-York Elevated Railroad Company to extend and complete its road.

Further to provide for the construction and operation of a steam railway or railways in the counties of the State. (Husted Rapid Transit bill.)

To prevent the deposit of carrion, &c., in the North and East Rivers, New-York and Raritan Bays.

In relation to the compensation of State Prison officers.

In relation to railroad corporations.

To incorporate the Great Council of the Improved Order of Red Men.

Relating to passenger fares on the street railroads in Buffalo.

Concerning the Buffalo street railroad companies and the Buffalo East Side Railroad Company.

Confirming acts of the Elmira Common Council.

Amending the act for the incorporation of religious societies.

For the removal of obstructions in the Delaware River.

Relative to County Treasurers in Monroe and Seneca Counties.

To reappropriate moneys for new work upon, and extraordinary repairs of, canals, and for the payment of awards made by Canal Appraisers.

Amending the act to supply the City of Rochester with pure water.

THE NAVAL ACADEMY.

ANNUAL EXAMINATION OF CADETS—THE ASSIGNMENTS OF MIDSHIPMEN AND ENGINEERS.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The annual examination of cadet midshipmen and cadet engineers at the Naval Academy, at Annapolis, will terminate to-morrow, and the final exercises will take place on Monday next, when the diplomas will be distributed to the graduating midshipmen, thirty-two in number, and the graduating engineers, sixteen in number. The graduates will be allowed to go to their homes to await orders, and the other classes will immediately sail for their annual practice cruise on the Atlantic coast, the cadet midshipmen on the Constellation, and the cadet engineers on the new sloop Alert. The candidates for admission to the academy as midshipmen, about 100, have been ordered to report on Monday, and their examination will be commenced on Tuesday next. The examination of applicants for admission to the Engineer Corps will take place in September.

THE HAMILL MURDER CASE.

Yesterday was the third day of the trial in the Kings County Court of Oyer and Terminer of Mrs. Sarah Merrigan, for the murder of Miss Margaret Hamill. After the opening of court several witnesses testified to seeing Miss Hamill enter Mrs. Merrigan's house on the day of the alleged murder. One of the witnesses testified that she had paid Miss Hamill $66 66 for rent on the day preceding the murder. The prosecution then rested their case, and Gen. Tracy, on the part of the defense, moved for the acquittal of the prisoner on the ground that the prosecution proved that Mrs. Merrigan's husband was present during the alleged murder. Counsel claimed that as Mrs. Merrigan was jointly indicted with her husband, any illegal act performed by her in his presence, and in which he participated, was presumed by the law to have been done under his coercion, and she was, therefore, not amenable. The court denied the motion. After a short consultation between Messrs. Tracy and Keady, counsel for the prisoner, the latter read to the jury the testimony of Mrs. Kipp, one of the witnesses for the prosecution, in which she states positively that during the struggle in Mrs. Merrigan's rooms, she heard distinctly the voice of a man raised in threatening and angry tones, and that on this testimony the defense submitted their case. Assistant District Attorney Moore said that the action of the counsel for the defense took him by surprise. If the counsel were going to proceed in that way he wished to be allowed to offer more testimony. This Gen. Tracy objected to as unheard of and in opposition to all precedent. Judge Pratt, after hearing counsel, reserved his decision until this morning. It will be remembered that after the Coroner's inquest Merrigan was indicted with his wife, but the prosecution, becoming convinced that he was not implicated, allowed him out on bail. At the former trial the defense offered testimony to show that Merrigan was not near the house on the day of the murder, and the object of Mr. Moore's motion was to introduce the testimony offered by the defense on that occasion.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

STRANGE COOLNESS OF A MAN WHO HAD TAKEN POISON AND KNEW HE MUST DIE—A DISPUTED PROMISSORY NOTE.

From an Occasional Correspondent.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Friday, June 18, 1875.

A case came up for trial in the Circuit Court in this city to-day before Judge Tappen, the details of which are very remarkable, in one sense, in showing the calmness and coolness of mind of a prominent Dutchess County physician, who had taken a dose of aconite through mistake, and who died in a little over two hours afterward, retaining his senses to the last. It was the case of Mary E. Earle against Richard Peck, administrator, brother of the dead physician. The full story is told in the evidence below.

Mr. Guernsey opened the case to the jury. Action was brought on a promissory note given by Dr. George Peck in 1873 to plaintiff. On Sunday or Sunday night, Oct. 12, 1873, Dr. Peck, through accident, took a poison called aconite. The family was aroused and he told them he expected to die. On his table were a number of bottles of medicine, the one containing poison being of the same size as the rest, and hence the mistake. He had attempted to overcome the effects of the poison with an emetic, and it operated well, but the end was fatal. He had the calmest demeanor, was in the possession of all his faculties, though he knew death was approaching. After he went down stairs and had roused the family, and had done everything he could, he sent for a neighbor; in an hour and a half after he came with his wife. He said, "I want paper, pens, and ink; I must be doing business." He said he would have no time to make a will; he wanted to take care of plaintiff who had cared for his household a number of years, and he had intended to make provision for her. He said to the neighbor, "I wish you to sit down and draw a note to Mary for $10,000 in consideration of services rendered. Mr. Lermond, the neighbor, wrote the note for $10,000 for Mary E. Earle, and Dr. Peck signed it, but he signed it so near the end of the paper that the "k" of his name ran out, and he tore it up and threw it on the stove-hearth. Then he drew another note and signed it and transferred it to Mary E. Earle. There was a call for her services, and she placed the sheet of paper containing the note upon the table and went out to do all she could for him. Dr. C. T. Couch came and suggested that Dr. Peck might pull through. Dr. Peck told him it was foolish; he had but a little time to live and must keep walking, and he did walk till the fatal effects came on and he died. He died leaving no children—left no one but a brother and sister.

Counsel read the deposition of Dr. Couch, who is now in Connecticut. He knew plaintiff since 1873. Knew Dr. George Peck, and attended him at his death, between 12 and 1 o'clock at night; he was lying on the floor; had little or no pain, and talked some; he was rational in conversation and conduct, and that condition of mind lasted till within five minutes of his death; several of his friends and neighbors were present; didn't hear or see anything about a note.

Cross-examined—Examined him professionally, and examined his pulse; he said, "I've done it," or something of that kind; showed him the bottle, and he said, "That's it; I have had it to doctor horses;" witness told him to get up and lie on the lounge; after he laid down he asked for water, and a swallow was given him; he spoke of chilliness of his feet, and blankets were wrapped around them; he was prostrated and weak, and the weakness increased till death; when witness reached the house Dr. Peck was assisted to the lounge; do not recollect that he stood alone at any time; he was on the lounge fifteen minutes before his death; there was some perspiration but no paroxysms.

Silas R. Germond testified that he lived across the road from Dr. Peck's; he left the house of witness shortly after 9 P. M. on the night of his death; he was in good health and rational; was called to his house afterward; witness' wife went with him; this was about 11:40; Dr. Peck was standing on the floor; the first words he said were: "I think I'm gone in;" Mrs. Earle said "that old brandy bottle" was the matter; she always thought it would be his death; he had made a mistake, and taken poison; Dr. Peck said he had taken aconite, and taken an emetic; he said he thought nothing would do him any good, and that he would have to die; witness thought him remarkably calm; his conversation was rational; he said he wanted me to write; said he must be doing business, and called for writing materials, and they were brought; he said: "I'd make a will if I had time, but I don't think I have time;" he said he would write a note; witness asked him in whose favor; he replied, pointing to Mrs. Earle, "Mary," in her favor for $10,000; witness asked him in what particular form; Dr. Peck said make it for services rendered, and witness wrote it and handed it to the Doctor; he took it, and took up the pen and said that is "Mary E.," and inserted the "E." and made the sign of omision below, indicating a letter had been left out; then he signed it and discovered in writing his name there was not room for the "k," the last letter in "Peck," and he said to witness, "write another," and he did; the first note was torn up by the Doctor and thrown on the stove hearth; witness wrote the second note on a sheet and the Doctor signed it in witness' presence. [Note shown.] Witness said, "That's the note, I should say; I have no doubt of it, and I saw Dr. George Peck write that name;" witness afterward, in the bed-room, asked him how he felt and expressed a hope he would get over it; he replied, "It is doing its work; I want to provide for Mary; I have given her that note and told her to take my checks." Mrs. Earle kept house for Dr. Peck, who was a bachelor. On his cross-examination witness stated Dr. Peck sometimes drank liquor to excess; while the note was being drawn he was walking the floor and complaining of his jaws paining him; he got down on his knees without assistance to vomit; when he walked he said, "As long as I keep walking I shall live."

The defense brought witnesses to prove that deceased's mind had been failing some time previous to his death, through the influence of liquor, and brought out the fact that after he had taken the poison he walked up stairs and looked over his books for an antidote; when he came down Mrs. Earle asked him if there was anything she could do for him; he replied no when she asked him if he could do anything for her; he told her to go and get Silas Germond, a neighbor, and he would give her enough to take her through this world. Plaintiff brought rebutting testimony, including the testimony of Drs. J. C. Payne and N. C. Campbell, who testified that aconite caused nervous prostration, paralysis, and stopped the heart, but did not affect the brain till the last. It produces a burning sensation in the throat, and purging and vomiting, but not generally giddiness or delirium. Mrs. Germond testified when Dr. Peck was dying upon the lounge, Dr. Couch said to him "Perhaps you may recover." Dr. Peck looked up with great indignation and ejaculated "Oh h—l!"

The case was summed up to-night, when the Judge charged the jury and they retired with instructions to send in a sealed verdict to the Clerk in the morning.

WRECK OF THE SHIP CHAMPLAIN.

THE CAPTAIN AND A SEAMAN KILLED—THE VESSEL CRUSHED ON THE NORTH FARALLON ISLAND IN A DENSE FOG.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 18.—The ship Champlain, Capt. Merrill, from New-York, struck on North Farallon Island at 7 o'clock last evening, and sunk. The Captain and one man were killed. The remainder of the crew arrived here this morning in the schooner Mendocino. The Champlain had been off the heads three days in a dense fog, during which time no observations had been obtained. At the time of striking she had just gone about, standing west by south. The Captain supposed he was in the vicinity of Point Keys, in which case the course steered would have carried the ship far to the north of the Farallon group. The ship was under top-sails, with courses hauled up. The fog was so thick that the rocks could not be seen until she struck. At first she struck lightly at the stern, and then grounded on the rocks her whole length. She knocked her bottom out, when she floated off and filled rapidly, and sunk in a few moments. The crew had scarcely time to get into the boats. Capt. Merrill was the last man to leave the ship, and in getting into a boat over the bows was struck by a martingale and was killed. The seaman who was lost was a German, from Hamburg, known as August. He was crushed before leaving the ship. The crew saved nothing but a few articles of clothing. Shortly after leaving the ship the fog rose, when the crew sighted the schooner Mendocino, pulled for her, and were taken on board. The ship was laden with a general cargo, including a lot of coal and pig-iron, consigned to George Howes & Co.

PEEKSKILL WATER IMPROVEMENTS.

One hundred men are at work on the storage reservoir for the Peekskill water supply. The reservoir is located in the Campfield woods on a high hill nearly two miles from the village, and back of Henry Ward Beecher's property at Rest Hill. The water is to be pumped up from Canopus Creek, a mile north, into the reservoir, which is on an elevation 350 feet higher. All the contracts are under way, and it is expected that they will be completed by Oct. 1. Pipes have been laid in all the streets of the village and thence to the storage reservoir. In making the excavations a number of revolutionary relics have been found, the site being the camp-ground of the American troops in the Revolution. An appropriation of $150,000 has been authorized by the Legislature, but it is expected that the improvements will amount to over $250,000 before they are completed.

LOCAL MISCELLANY.

REVOLT AGAINST TAMMANY.

FORMIDABLE OPPOSITION IN THE TWENTIETH ASSEMBLY DISTRICT—A NEW DEMOCRATIC GENERAL COMMITTEE.

Just prior to the election last Fall a number of influential Democrats in the Twentieth Assembly District, who had become disaffected toward Tammany Hall, formed a combination which effected the defeat of the Tammany candidate for Assembly, resulting in the election of the Republican candidate, Jacob Hess. This opposition has since that time developed into a formal organization, resulting in a call for a primary election to elect seven delegates from each election district in the Assembly District to form a district committee, with the understanding that on the organization of the district committee, it shall appoint five persons from the committee to confer with Democrats in other Assembly Districts, with the view of electing similar district committees throughout the County of New-York, and thus form the basis of a Democratic General Committee in opposition to that of Tammany Hall. The reasons assigned for this movement are that the Tammany method of nominating candidates for office has resolved itself into a machinery for perpetuating a one-man power, despotic in character, and that it is essential, "for the preservation of a republican form of government, that immediate measures be taken to restore to the people the power that belongs to them." Of this organization against Tammany Hall ex-Surveyor Emanuel B. Hart was chosen Chairman, and ex-Assemblyman John D. Coughlin Secretary.

The primary election contemplated was held last evening, in Mechanics' Hall, on Third avenue, between Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth streets, and resulted in the election of a District Committee consisting of 301 members, among whom are such men as ex-Chief Justice John M. Barbour, of the Superior Court, Justice Francis M. Bixby, ex-Surrogate Gideon J. Tucker, Dr. Feodore Mierson, ex-Tammany Sachem Emanuel B. Hart, ex-Judge William H. Leonard, ex-Assemblyman John D. Coughlin, ex-Register John McCoole, ex-Alderman Robert McCafferty, and ex-Speaker William Hitchman, making, in influential personnel, a stronger District Committee than has heretofore been elected in this city.

The present delegation from this District in the Tammany General Committee is headed by Joseph J. Donohue, and the Chairman of the Tammany District Committee is James B. Archer, and the delegation and the Committee have both become exceedingly unpopular in the District, on account of their alleged extreme subserviency to the behests of John Kelly. The complaint in the District is that Kelly, through his Inspectors of Election, has had returned, irrespective of the wishes of the voters of the District, just such delegates to the General and District Committees as he saw fit to select, and they propose to remedy this by inverting the order of proceeding, so as to have the voters say who they will have for delegates on these committees. The object in commencing so early in the season to effect an organization against Tammany is to have it perfected throughout the City in time to have an independent Democratic General Committee to issue a call for primaries to nominate opposition candidates to Tammany in every Assembly District in the City at the election next Fall.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
WASHINGTON, June 13, 1875.

GENTLEMEN: I would not disguise the pleasure which the letter of invitation, signed by so many eminent and honored names of the New-York Bar, gives me. A compliment from no other body of men could be by me so valued. With you and among you has been all my pride in life. Called to a somewhat responsible place at a time when the first century of our national life departs and a more trying one begins, I am deeply impressed with the belief that the Republic, which lawyers did much to found, will need their earnest aid to preserve.

The industry, integrity, economy, and self-denying energy of a hundred years, guided in the main by religious influences, have made us a great, rich, and powerful nation; but only by the continued practice of these sterner virtues is the continuance of our free government possible.

By a law quite resistless prostration of healthy business has followed the delusions of intoxicated enterprise, and yet our people do not accept the inevitable, but still insist that by some contrivance they can grow rich without economy, and continue extravagant without ruin.

If, through the Divine guidance, I can persevere unto the end of my official course so as to meet the approval of my brethren of the Bar, and of other good men, I shall ask no more reward; and until then permit me to decline the banquet which you so kindly offer, and for which evidence of your encouragement I am sincerely grateful.

Very truly I remain ever your friend and obedient servant,
EDWARDS PIERREPONT.

To Hon. WILLIAM M. EVARTS and others.

THE HARVEST PROSPECTS.

During the present week McKillop, Sprague & Co. have received reports of the harvest prospects from several points in Southern and Western States. From Arkansas the reports are that about as much cotton was planted as last year, but about one-third more grain. In all cases the promise is that the crop of breadstuffs will be large and of excellent quality. In Mississippi the fruit crop will be a failure, but the condition and prospects of corn and cotton are very good. In Texas the corn and cotton will be good but late. The Louisiana reports indicate an increase in the area of cane, corn, and rice cultivation, and the condition of crops there in general is above the average. The most disheartening reports are those from Nebraska and Colorado, which are yet infected by the grasshoppers. In Colorado a half crop may be raised, but not enough for food of the inhabitants. In Nebraska, except a strip of country south of the Platte River and along the Missouri River about ten miles in extent, in which there will be no small grain of any account, the reports are generally otherwise favorable.

GERMAN INDEPENDENT CITIZENS' ASSOCIATION.

The regular monthly meeting of the German Independent Citizens' Association, was held last night at Beethoven Hall, Hon. Oswald Ottendorfer in the chair. Mr. Glaubensklee, on the part of the Executive Committee, reported a resolution for the appointment of a special committee of three to examine carefully the General Savings Bank law, and to report at the next meeting what amendments, if any, were needed, so as to secure candidates for the next Legislature favorable to them. The recommendation was approved, and Messrs. F. Traud, C. J. Schumacher, and John Riegelmann were appointed such committee. The Executive Committee further reported a resolution calling for the appointment of a committee to recommend to the Board of Supervisors to take proper measures to secure a better protection of the documents in the Register's office.

The Executive Committee further reported a series of resolutions eulogizing Gov. Tilden, and concluding with the following:

Resolved, That in our opinion the bill passed by the last Legislature, still awaiting the official sanction of the Governor, creating two additional Police Justices, has no justification in the actual needs of criminal administration; that the number of Police Justices now attending the Police Courts are capable of meeting the demands of justice requiring their adjudication; that the real intention of the bill has been to provide place for party claimants, and that we therefore respectfully request the Governor to withhold his official sanction.

Resolved, That the bill authorizing the appointment of a commission for the examination of armory claims is not requisite; that just claims are best examined and adjudicated before the regular courts, and the establishment of special commissions for such purposes would create precedence encouraging frauds and corruption.

Resolved, That we have full confidence that the Governor in the consideration of the bills before him will disregard all party and personal claims, and give legal force only to such bills as in his opinion will prove beneficial to the community at large. The dissatisfaction which may be created by the defeat of special legislation among interested parties will be fully compensated by the verdict of a grateful people.

These resolutions were unanimously adopted.

Mr. Sutter moved that the Executive Committee investigate whether the salaries of the public officers could not be reduced. This resolution was carried after some debate, in which the President, Judge Otterbourg, Prof. Glaubensklee, Dr. Gerhe and others participated. The meeting then adjourned.

MAYOR WICKHAM'S BILL FOR CARRIAGE HIRE.

The bill of Mayor Wickham for carriage hire for the month of February has not yet been paid, nor is it likely to be. Controller Green is opposed to the claim, as will be seen from a letter which he sent to the Mayor, of which the following is the substance:

"In a bill of Charles H. Noyes, designated as Chief Clerk in the Mayor's office, payable from contingencies of the Mayor's office, for the month of February, are two items for carriage hire, viz.: one, 'B. N. Harrison, carriage hire,' &c., and the other, 'paid for carriages used by the Mayor in the discharge of official duties,' amounting together to $79 17. This bill is certified by the Mayor as correct. During the period of extravagance which prevailed several years ago, expenses for carriage hire for public officials receiving liberal salaries was one of the lesser objectionable charges on the treasury which were the subject of just criticism. Efforts to check expenses of this character have been so successful that the presenting of a bill for such service has been of the rarest occurrence for more than three years past. With the exception of a bill from the Mayor's office in January of the present year, no bill of this character has been paid within the last three years; no such bill was ever presented from the Mayor's office during the entire period of the Havemeyer administration. In allowing the bill for January, the first month of your administration, it was, perhaps, proper to suppose it an exceptional instance; but a charge of about the same amount in the bill of February leads to the inference that it is likely to become a regular monthly draft upon the treasury. It therefore seems proper to suggest, with very great deference, whether such expenses are proper charges to be paid from the public treasury."

Mayor Wickham has not yet replied to the Controller's communication, or given any reasons why the City should supply him with a carriage daily.

THE NEW-JERSEY POISONING CASE.

An inquest was commenced at Brady's Morgue in Jersey City last night in the case of Mary Fallon, the woman who is alleged to have been poisoned by John Moran, at No. 19 Sussex street, on Tuesday night. The prisoner was brought into the room where the investigation was being held, and handcuffed to a chair. He was attended by his counsel, William D. Daly, with whom he laughed and chatted during the whole proceedings. Sergeant McKaig testified that he was informed of the case early on Wednesday morning, and went to the house. Afterward he arrested the prisoner at his residence in Steuben street. When he was taken into custody, the prisoner said he had been in bed since 10 o'clock the previous night, but Mrs. Murphy, his boarding mistress, on being appealed to, refused to confirm that statement. Two empty Bass' ale bottles were found on the table in Mrs. Fallon's apartment, and two glasses, one of which contained a sediment of Paris green. Officer Kipp testified that shortly after midnight he met a young son of Mrs. Fallon, who told him that his mother had been poisoned by the prisoner; he went into the house and found the woman suffering from convulsions; she told him that Moran had called about 11 o'clock and brought with him two bottles of ale; immediately after drinking she was taken sick. Officer Finlay corroborated the testimony of Officer Kipp in regard to the woman's statements, and at the close of his testimony the inquest was adjourned until Monday night.

LAW REPORTS.

THE ERIE RAILWAY.

PARTICULARS OF THE FORECLOSURE SUITS —TEXT OF JUDGE DONOHUE'S ORDER APPOINTING THE RECEIVER.

It appears that the foreclosure suits brought against the Erie Railway Company, the commencement of which has been already noticed in THE TIMES, are having some effect on the stock of the company in Wall street. The suits are two in number, one is brought by C. Bancroft Davis, in which the Erie Railway Company, the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, and James Brown are made defendants, to foreclose the fifth and supplemental mortgages; the other by the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, as plaintiff, against the Erie Railway Company, and the Trustees of the fifth Erie mortgage, as defendants. In the first suit Davis sues as trustee of the fifth and supplemental mortgages, and charges that the old Erie Company carried four mortgages—the first, made in 1847, on which $2,483,000 is outstanding; the second, made in 1849, on which $2,852,000 is outstanding; the third, made in 1853, on which $4,852,000 is outstanding; the fourth, made in 1857, on which $2,927,000 is outstanding. Of the third and fourth of these mortgages the plaintiff Davis and James Brown were made trustees. The fifth mortgage, one of those to be foreclosed in this suit, is for $5,000,000, of which plaintiff and James Brown are also trustees, and on which $709,000 is yet outstanding. Subsequent to this fifth mortgage, and in aid of it, the other or supplemental mortgage embraced in this suit was executed and made to cover property to be acquired by the company in the future, but on which no bonds were issued. Though these mortgages were foreclosed in 1869, it is now claimed by plaintiffs that, by act of the Legislature they were revived and made a lien on the whole property of the present Erie Corporation. Default having been made in the payment of interest on both, plaintiff prays that the trustees thereof be awarded possession of the property of the Erie Railway Company, that a receiver be appointed, an account taken, a decree of foreclosure ordered, and such other or further relief granted in the premises as to the court may seem just. On account of his age, Mr. Brown, one of the trustees, declines to join in the suit, and is, therefore, made a defendant therein.

In the second suit, that brought by the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, and already mentioned, it is sought to foreclose the two consolidated mortgages dated respectively Sept. 1, 1870, and Feb. 4, 1874, of both of which plaintiff is Trustee. It is claimed on the part of plaintiff that $12,446,000 on bonds at seven per cent. is outstanding on the first four mortgages of the Erie Company, in the payment of the interest on which no default has yet been made; that on the fifth mortgage, one of those included in the preceding suit, there is outstanding $709,500, default in the payment of interest on which was made June 1 inst.; that the two consolidated mortgages on which this suit is brought cover the original road from Piermont to Dunkirk, built by the old Erie Company, forty-two miles of which are in the State of Pennsylvania; the Jersey City branch, originally used under lease, but which is now a part of the main line to Dunkirk, extending 458.97 miles, the leases and leasehold interests of other lines making the entire line operated about 950.97 miles, including the Newburg branch, the Buffalo branch, New-York and Pittsburg Railroad Company, the Rochester and Genesee Valley Railroad Company, and the Long Dock Company. The first of these mortgages in suit was made to secure $30,000,000, and each bond under it was dated Sept. 1, 1870, payable Sept. 1, 1920, and bearing gold interest at seven per cent., payable half yearly on March 1 and Sept. 1. Under such mortgage, bonds to the extent of $16,656,000 were issued, but on these the March interest has been paid. The second mortgage was made to secure the same amount as the first, of other and different bonds, to secure also $10,000,000 of bonds already issued, dated Jan. 1, 1873, payable Jan. 1, 1903, bearing seven per cent. interest, payable quarterly, and on which no default has yet been made. Of the $30,000,000, $15,000,000 in bonds have been issued, dated March 2, 1874, payable 1894, and bearing gold interest at seven per cent., payable in June and December of each year. Of this interest $553,190 40 was due on June 1, instant, and default made in the payment thereof.

The complaint further recites the commencement of a suit in the name of the people of the State on the ground of Erie's insolvency, and the appointment of Mr. Jewett, its President, as Receiver, and alleges belief on the part of the officers of plaintiff in the insolvency of Erie as stated in the complaint in that suit. It further claims that the rights of the holders of bonds under these mortgages are superior to the rights of the people, and that they are entitled therefore to have the mortgages foreclosed and the road sold to protect them, and asks that a Receiver be appointed to protect their interests and for an accounting, and that Mr. Jewett, the present Receiver of the Erie Company, be appointed Receiver in this action, with proper modifications to protect the bondholders.

Mr. Dorman B. Eaton puts in an answer on behalf of the bondholders under a mortgage of the Buffalo, Bradford and Pittsburg Road, in which he claims that the bonds of that road are substantially Erie bonds, having been largely exchanged therefor and guaranteed by the company, and asks the protection of the court for the bondholders under the mortgage of that road.

In response to the prayer for the appointment of Mr. Jewett as Receiver in these suits, Judge Donohue has made an order to that effect, the substance of which has been already stated, and the text of which is in full as follows:

I. That the authority of Hon. Hugh J. Jewett, now by him possessed to operate the road and lines of the defendant, the Erie Railway Company, and so forth, as Receiver of the same, be also possessed by him in this suit, and as Receiver under the two mortgages mentioned in the complaint in this suit so far as the same affects the mortgaged property, rights, or franchises therein mentioned.

II. That for the special protection of those secured by said mortgages in their legal and equitable rights, said Jewett is hereby appointed Receiver of the roads, property, real and personal, leases, title deeds, books and contract rights, tolls, income, and franchise, mentioned in or covered by either of said mortgages, or upon which either is a lien; and that as such Receiver he is hereby authorized (1) to demand, receive, and enforce possession of whatever he is hereby appointed Receive. (2.) To run and operate the road and lines of the company. (3.) To preserve in possession and keep in good condition and repair said road and property and protect title, and that he pay interest as it becomes due on bonds secured by mortgage prior to said fifth mortgage. (4.) To employ and pay such persons as he may find reasonably necessary, and to dismiss the same. (5.) To make and enforce appropriate contracts for limited periods, which shall be adopted to promote the efficient and economical operation of the said roads. (6.) To adjust and pay taxes, assessments, charges, rents, and ticket and freight balance and other expenses. (7.) To take and institute as he may deem needful whatever suits or proceedings he may, by counsel, be reasonably advised to be necessary and proper in the appropriate discharge of his duty as Receiver, and defend and resist any suit or proceedings which he shall deem advisable. (8.) To do such acts and make such payments as may be necessary to preserve the corporate existence of the Erie Railway Company.

III. That said Receiver file a bond (for faithful discharge of his duties) in the sum of $500,000, with sureties approved by a Justice of this court.

IV. That as soon as practicable after entering upon the discharge of his duty, the Receiver file an inventory under oath, giving a correct and adequate description, as he may be able, of all property, rights, and franchises covered by said mortgages, or either of them.

The order then directs that the Receiver shall keep proper accounts, as directed in the order appointing him Receiver of the Erie Railway Company, and that James C. Spencer be appointed Referee to pass his accounts from time to time.

Mr. Jewett has already qualified as such Receiver, by filing a bond in the sum of $500,000.

A YOUNG JOCKEY SEEKING HIS LIBERTY.

John Whitley, a bright lad of about eight years of age, was brought before Chief Justice Davis, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, yesterday. The petition on which the writ was granted stated that the boy had been given by his mother under a contract for one year to Col. McDaniel, of racing notoriety, and that the latter was restraining him of his liberty and treating him cruelly and inhumanly. The boy's story was that he was restrained of his liberty by being prevented from visiting his mother; that with a view to training him for a jockey, he was, he supposed, fed on stale bread and salt pork; that he did not relish this class of food, and because he complained McDaniel's cook sought to sharpen his appetite and promote his digestion by "licking him." This kind of treatment was denied on the part of Col. McDaniel, but the court concluded to give the boy to his mother, and did so.

THE TAMMANY SOCIETY AND MR. WATERBURY.

The alternative mandamus granted against the Tammany Society a few days since, at the suit of Nelson J. Waterbury, one of its members, was made returnable in Supreme Court, Chambers, yesterday. A number of the members of the Society, including Augustus Schell, Thomas Dunlap, Joel Stevens, and several other sachems, were present in court, accompanied by their counsel, Mr. Henry L. Clinton, ready to make return against the right of Mr. Waterbury to have his mandamus made imperative. As already published in THE TIMES, the alternative writ was obtained on the representation that the society was about taking proceedings to expel Mr. Waterbury as a member; that this was being done without authority, and that the mandamus was necessary to compel the society to furnish him with a copy of the provisions under which they assumed to act in the attempt to expel him. Accompanying the alternative mandamus was an injunction restraining further action in the matter until the society furnish Mr. Waterbury with a copy of the provisions of the constitution, demanded by him.

Mr. Waterbury did not appear in court, but was represented by ex-Chief Justice Barbour, who asked for an adjournment on the ground that Mr. Waterbury had left the City on Wednesday evening last for Albany to argue a cause before the Court of Appeals yesterday. The adjournment was opposed by Mr. Clinton on the ground that Mr. Waterbury had left the City on Wednesday evening, before he could possibly have known that his case would be on the calendar of the Court of Appeals for yesterday; that when he obtained his writ of mandamus, he fixed a day on which a return should be made to it, and on such return he was bound to be present or have counsel represent him to sustain his order, and, in view of the fact that the action of the society was restrained by injunction, an adjournment should not be granted.

Judge Westbrook, before whom the matter came, said he supposed if the respondents insisted on it he would be bound to hear them, but suggested that it would be better for counsel on both sides to agree on a day next week when Mr. Waterbury could be present, and the case argued before him, (Judge Westbrook.) In conformity with the suggestion of the Court, counsel for the respective parties agreed on Friday next, to which day the argument was adjourned.

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.

COTTON CONTRACTS—THE PRINCIPLES GOVERNING THEM.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—In the Supreme Court of the United States the following decisions have been given:

No. 142.—The United States, appellants, vs. C. V. Woodruff and A. Bouchard, Julia A. Nutt, Executrix of Haller Nutt, Mary A. Wells, et al.; No. 143.—Bessie Elgee Gaussen, Executrix of John K. Elgee, deceased, appellant, vs. the United States; No. 166.—C. V. Woodruff & Co., appellants, vs. the United States; No. 223.—Julia A. Nutt, Executrix of Haller Nutt, deceased, appellant, vs. the United States.

Mr. Justice Strong delivered the opinion of the court. These cases have been elaborately and very ably argued, touching both the legality and the construction of the contracts under which the different parties claim. But in the view which we take of the merits of the controversy it is unnecessary to determine whether the contracts were or were not forbidden by the non-intercourse acts of Congress. It is sufficient to examine the contracts themselves and to determine what is their true meaning. From the findings of the Court of Claims it appears that the cotton, which is the subject of controversy, was raised upon three plantations in Wilkinson County, Miss., worked by John J. Elgee and Josiah Chambers. The interest of the latter, whatever, it may have been, was, however, abandoned to his copartner, and before the seizure, under the Captured and Abandoned Property act, the whole right of Chambers to the cotton had become vested in Elgee exclusively. This has not been controverted. The fundamental question, therefore, is, in all the cases, whether Elgee parted with the ownership by either of the contracts found by the Court of Claims to have been made by him, or for him by his agent, Gordon. It is the owner alone who has any standing in the Court of Claims under the Captured and Abandoned Property act. In regard to such property, only such suits can be brought as are authorized by the statute. That statute, (the act of March 12, 1863,) furnishes a complete system for the prosecution of claims under it, and defines the extent of the rights which those who claim an interest in the proceeds of property captured or abandoned during the civil war may assert against the Government. According to the well-known rules of statutory construction the system is exclusive of all others, and the rights defined are the only ones which can be enforced in any judicial proceeding. The language of the act is, "that any person claiming to have been the owner of any such abandoned or captured property may, at any time within two years after the suppression of the rebellion, prefer his claims to the proceeds thereof in the Court of Claims, and, on proof to the satisfaction of said court of his ownership of said property, of his right to the proceeds thereof, and that he has never given any aid or support to the present rebellion, to receive the residue of such proceeds, after the deduction of any purchase money which may have been paid, together with the expense of transportation and sale of said property, and other lawful expenses attending the disposition thereof."

Thus it is plain that no one is allowed to sue in the Court of Claims for the proceeds of captured or abandoned property unless he can prove to the satisfaction of the court three things: First, his ownership of the property seized; secondly, his right to the proceeds thereof; and, thirdly, that he never gave aid or comfort to the rebellion. The third, it is true, has been ruled by this court to be no longer necessary since the amnesty proclamation, but the ownership of the property at the time of the seizure, and the right to the proceeds thereof, are still indispensable to any standing in court as a claimant for the proceeds of property captured which have been paid into the Treasury of the United States. We are, then, to inquire whether Woodruff & Bouchard, or Haller Nutt had acquired the ownership of the cotton prior to its seizure by the agent of the United States on the 2d of April, 1862; for if either of these parties had become the owner and entitled to the proceeds of its sale before that date, that party is entitled to a judgment for the sum remaining in the Treasury, after the deductions are made provided by the statute. If, on the other hand, neither of those parties has shown that Elgee parted with his title; if the ownership remained in Elgee until after the seizure, and until his death, his representatives are the only persons that are authorized to sue for the proceeds of the cotton in the Court of Claims, for they only are the owners, whatever equities may exist in favor of the parties who contracted to buy. We come, then, at once to the question whether Woodruff and Bouchard acquired the ownership of Elgee. If they did, it was mediately through C. S. Lobdell. They made no contract with Elgee, but Lobdell did, and they purchased Lobdell's contract. What then was that contract? On the 31st day of July, 1863, W. C. Gordon, an authorized agent of Elgee and Chambers, entered into the following agreement with Lobdell:

> MISSISSIPPI, WILKINSON COUNTY.
> We have this 31st day of July, 1863, sold unto Mr. C. S. Lobdell our crops of cotton, now lying in the county aforesaid, numbering about 2,100 bales, at the price of ten cents per pound, currency, the said cotton to be delivered at the landing at Fort Adams, and to be paid for when weighed, Mr. Lobdell agreeing to furnish at his cost the bagging, rope, and twine to bale the cotton unginned; and we do acknowledge to have received in order to confirm this contract, the sum of $30. This cotton will be received and shipped by the house of Da Silva & Co., New-Orleans, and from this date is at the risk of Mr. Lobdell. This cotton is said to have weighed an average of 500 pounds when baled.
>
> (Signed.) W. C. GORDON,
> Agent for Messrs. Elgee & Chambers.
> C. S. LOBDELL.

At the time when the contract was made the baled cotton was stored under a covering of boards at some place not certainly designated. A portion equal to about twenty bales unbaled, was in a gin-house on Buffalo Bayou, at a place known as "The Rocks" or "Felter's Plantation," about ten miles from the Mississippi River. At this place Lobdell and the agent of Elgee met. Whether it was the same place where the bulk of the cotton was lying, does not distinctly appear. Immediately after the contract, Lobdell employed J. M. Morris, living near where the cotton was stored, "to watch and take care" of it, and paid him therefor, and Morris continued his care until the cotton was seized by the agent of the United States. But it does not appear that the possession was surrendered to Morris, or that there was any change of possession. At this time the region where the parties were was greatly disturbed by the war, and the cotton was in danger of being burned by the Confederate forces and of being captured by the United States. Under these circumstances what, ought it to be concluded, was intended by the contract between Gordon and Lobdell? Was it intended to pass the property in the cotton to the purchasers, or was it, in legal effect, only an agreement to sell? It must be admitted there is often great difficulty in determining whether a contract is itself a sale of personal property, so as to pass the ownership to the vendee, or whether it is a sale on condition, to take effect or be consummated only when the condition shall be performed, or whether it is a mere agreement to sell. It is, doubtless, true that, whether the property passes or not is dependent upon the intention of the parties to the contract, and that intention must be gathered from the language of the instrument.

There are, however, certain rules for the construction of such contracts, which are well settled in England, and, we think, also in this country. Mr. Justice Blackburn, in his work on sales, pages 151-2, states two of them, and Mr. Benjamin, in his treatise, second edition, page 236, adds a third. They are as follows: First, "When, by the agreement, the vender is to do anything to the goods for the purpose of putting them into that state in which the purchaser is bound to accept them, or, as it is sometimes worded, into a deliverable state, the performance of those things shall, in the absence of circumstances indicating a contrary intention, be taken to be a condition precedent to the vesting of the property." Secondly, "Where anything remains to be done to the goods for the purpose of ascertaining the price, as by weighing, measuring, or testing the goods, where the price is to depend on the quantity or quality of the goods, the performance of these things shall also be a condition precedent to the transfer of the property, although the individual goods be ascertained and they are in the State in which they ought to be accepted. Third, "When the buyer is by the contract bound to do anything as a consideration, either precedent or concurrent, on which the passing of the property depends, the property will not pass until the condition be fulfilled, even though the goods may have been actually delivered into the possession of the buyer." These may be regarded as rules for ascertaining the intention of the parties. They are in most cases held to be conclusive tests. Though not supported by all the decisions, they certainly are generally accepted in England, and by most of the courts in this country. And they are the rules which are applicable to contracts for the sale of specific chattels, contracts which define the articles which are the subjects of agreement, either single articles or aggregates separated from others, as the grain in a bin, the hides in a specified vat, &c.; or, such a case as the present, all the cotton at a designated place. A considerable number of the numerous authorities which justify these rules are collected by Mr. Benjamin in his Treatise on Sales, second edition, pages 234, et seq. Applying them to the contract now under consideration, we think it cannot be maintained that the parties intended the contract should pass the ownership of the cotton at once to the buyer, without any ascertainment of the whole price by weighing, without its complete preparation for delivery, without any delivery and without payment. This is not the case of an unconditional sale of a specific chattel for an ascertained price. Its subject was the crops of cotton lying in Wilkinson County. The contract was a cash contract. No credit was intended. An ascertainment of the price by weighing was contemplated, though it is not stated where the weighing should be done. The vendor undertook to deliver at Fort Adams. He was to deliver it in bales. Yet all the property was not in a deliverable state. Part was unginned, unbaled, and unbagged. The vendor was to prepare it for delivery by ginning, baling, and bagging it, and Lobdell was to furnish the necessary bagging, rope, and twine. This was to put the cotton into the condition in which he was bound to receive it, for he was not bound to receive any unless the whole was ginned, baled, and bagged. The contract was entire, and the vendor was not bound to put the cotton into a deliverable state unless Lobdell furnished the necessary material. Besides, it was stipulated that the cotton should be received by Da Silva & Co. Our conclusion does not rest merely on the ground that the cotton was not weighed or delivered. It is unnecessary to decide that weighing the cotton was in this case a prerequisite to the transmission of the property, though that appears to be the law in England, when by the contract the goods are to be weighed by the vendor, or by him concurrently with the vendee.

The court here considered the English and American cases, and proceeded thus: We come next to the claim of Mrs. Nutt, Executrix of Haller Nutt, deceased. A very vigorous argument has been made to us in support of this claim, but we think it cannot be sustained. Assuming that Nutt's contract with Elgee, made in October 1863, was not illegal, that it was not in violation of the non-intercourse laws, it still was not such a contract as passed the property in the cotton. The finding of the court is that in October, 1863, Truman Holmes, as agent of Dr. Nutt, contracted with Elgee for the sale from him of so much of the 2,100 bales of cotton stowed at Felter's plantation as he (Holmes) should get out in safety to market, for the price of £15 per bale, to be paid in Liverpool; the risk of the cotton, till got out, to be on Mr. Elgee. That this was but an executory contract is very plain. Its subject was indefinite. It was not necessarily the 2,100 bales; not certainly any of them. It was simply so much of them as Holmes should get out in safety to a market. The agreement contemplated that he might never get out any. If so, nothing was agreed to be sold. In fact, he never did get out a bale. Whatever else may be dispensed with, it is certain there can be no sale of personal chattels without a specific identification of the things sold. Which of the whole number of bales could the purchaser say were his? For which of them could he have been compelled to pay? And there is no evidence that Holmes ever received the cotton, or any part of it, or asserted any possession, though the sale was on credit, and if the property was his principal's he was entitled to move it at once to market. Our attention has been called to the letter addressed by Elgee to Holmes afterward, which, it is argued, was itself a sale. It was dated Oct. 8, 1863, and was as follows:

> DEAR SIR: It having been agreed on between you and myself that I sell to you all the cotton of Elgee & Chambers now baled and under shed for the price of £15 sterling per bale, payable in Liverpool, you will cause the same to be placed to my credit with James A. Jackson & Co., Liverpool. J. K. ELGEE.
> Capt. THOMAS HOLMES, present.

This was not found by the court to have been the contract between the parties. It refers to the former agreement, and evidently it was intended as a direction where to pay the price of the cotton, if any should be got out, and if any purchase money should become due. It had no other purpose. It was not even a delivery order. Much less can it be regarded as a bill of sale. And there is no finding that it was accepted. The only contract, therefore, respecting the sale of the cotton to Holmes, upon which the Executrix of Dr. Nutt can rely, is that found by the court to have been made, a contract for the sale of so much of the 2,100 bales as Holmes should get out in safety to a market, and that contract passed no property in the cotton.

This disposed of the whole case. The property in the cotton was in Elgee, and neither of the contracts proved divested him of his ownership, the result is that his personal representatives are entitled to a judgment for the entire proceeds of the cotton held in trust for the owner.

The judgment of the Court of Claims is reversed, and the record is remitted with instructions to dismiss the petitions of Woodruff and Bouchard, and Julia A. Nutt, executrix, and to enter judgment in favor of the personal representatives of John K. Elgee for the sum found in the Treasury, the net proceeds of the sale of the cotton.

Dissenting, Mr. Justice Bradley and Mr. Justice Hunt.

ALLEGED DEALING IN COUNTERFEIT MONEY.

The case in which Gen. William G. Manck, the ex-Secret Service detective, is charged with dealing in counterfeit money, was called on for trial yesterday, in the criminal branch of the United States Circuit Court, by Judge Benedict. Manck informed the Court that his counsel, ex-Judge Dittenhoefer, was out of town fulfilling a professional engagement. The case was set down to be tried on next Thursday. Gen. Manck then said that he had no money to subpœna his witnesses, and asked that the subpœnas be issued at the expense of the Government. Judge Benedict said that he would so direct, on Gen. Manck filing an affidavit of his inability.

STEALING A SCHOONER.

Capt. John A. Syperick, of the American schooner Mary Chilton, owned by Henry Maas, of this City, appeared before Commissioner Shields, yesterday, and made an affidavit that on the 13th ult., while the vessel was lying in the harbor of San Andreas, in the United States of Colombia, and he was ashore, the mate, David Lawson; the steward, Charles Boruss, and three of the crew, William Barrett, August Hockmuth, and Frank Albert, ran the vessel out of port, and abandoned her in the Gulf of Mexico; that the vessel had a valuable cargo, consisting of india-rubber, cocoa-nuts, hides, turtle-shells, cotton, &c.; that two passengers, W. H. Warney, late master of the brig Frances Jane, of Baltimore, and a Spaniard, name unknown, were carried off in the schooner; that a boat containing all who were on the schooner was seized off the coast of Cuba by the Spanish authorities, and that all in the boat, except the passengers, were detained in Havana awaiting the action of the United States Government. The object of giving the affidavit was to furnish a sworn statement to the authorities at Washington on which to base such action as may be deemed proper. It is probable that the accused parties will soon be sent on to this City and subjected to an examination before Commissioner Shields.

FRIDAY, June 18—P. M.

The failures at London and the forebodings of further disasters there, conveyed hither by cable yesterday afternoon, had the not unexpected effect of creating a feeling of depression in financial circles here at the opening of business to-day, and led to a sharp decline in prices on the Stock Exchange. The anticipated additions to the previously-noted suspensions, as reported in to-day's London dispatches, consisted of the firms of N. Alexander, Son & Co. and Octavius Phillips & Co., of London, and Medlock, Smallware & Co., of Manchester. The best indication of the significance of these failures is to be seen in the changes in British Consols, which would undoubtedly have weakened if the troubles had exercised any serious influence on business generally on the other side. As it is, however, the decline was unimportant and the market closed higher, with a less gloomy feeling on the Stock Exchange, and this improvement was reflected in the closing business here, where there is a sensible change for the better from the feverishness and excitement of the morning. It is not to be expected, after the heavy failures that have taken place recently, that we have yet heard of the last of the business wrecks in Great Britain, and still other failures may result from the difficulties already experienced. Thus far New-York has not suffered from the disturbances at London, and we have yet to learn that, except in one instance, any considerable amounts of bills outstanding on the suspended firms are held here; while the weeding-out process at London may ultimately redound to our benefit, for already it has increased the demand for United States bonds, the bankers here having within the past few days picked up, mostly in small lots, considerable amounts of 1881s, the various issues of 5-20s, 10-40s, and New 5s. The shipment of bonds to Europe would be much larger if the available supply on the market was not so limited.

The early dealings in the Stock Exchange were characterized, as has been remarked, by an unsettled feeling and a heavy pressure to sell. Lake Shore was a notable feature, breaking from 61¼ to 59, immense blocks of the stock changing hands. The highest price afterwards touched was 60⅜, and at the close there was a reaction to 59⅞. The decline was attributed, in some quarters, to sales for the long account. Erie was next in point of weakness, declining to 14⅝, the lowest price made for a long time past. The stock was freely sold on the decline, at London, and on a report here that foreclosure proceedings against the company had been instituted. Towards the close there was a recovery to 15⅜, the final sales being at 15⅛@15¼. After the first period of depression at the opening, Western Union recovered from 74¾ to 75⅞, North-western Common from 35¾ to 36⅞, St. Paul from 31 to 31⅜, Pacific Mail from 31⅞ to 32⅝, Rock Island from 101⅛ to 101½, Ohio and Mississippi from 22⅝ to 23, and Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph from 22½ to 23. The closing quotations showed a slight reaction. Wabash touched 6½, and C., C. and I. C. 3, closing at 7 and 3¾, respectively. Investment shares continue firm, and in good demand.

The money market was easy, and in the afternoon the rate for call loans declined to 1½ ℘ cent. under large offerings of capital. There is no change to report in discounts, the rates for prime acceptances ranging from 3½ to 5 ℘ cent.

The Bank of England gained £117,000 sterling on balance to-day. Consols, which opened at 92¾@92 13-16 for money and 92⅞@92 15-16 for the account, closed at 92⅞@93, and 93⅛. United States bonds closed as follows: Old 1865s and 1867s at 106½@106¾, 10-40s at 104¼@104½, and New 5s at 103½. The sterling exchange market was steady until near the close, when the fears of a "squeeze" in cash gold led to a slight reduction in the rates for business for 60 day bills, which sold at $4 87. Demand drafts remained firm at $4 90@$4 90¼, the nominal asking rates being still $4 88 and $4 91. Gold was firm at 117¼, the only registered quotation throughout the day. At the opening cash gold was easy and lent free of interest and at 1 ℘ cent. for carrying, but the demand afterward increased, and late in the day 1-64@1-32 was paid for use. The specie engagements for to-morrow's European steamers amount to $2,250,000.

Government bonds were strong and in demand, the foreign bankers having been liberal buyers whenever the offerings permitted. The prices now current are the highest for some time past, and yet holders remain firm. Railroad bonds were firm and prices well sustained. In State bonds Tennessees were weak, but the market was dull and spiritless.

The imports of dry goods at the port of New-York for the week ending this date are $894,069, and the amount marketed $952,319. The total imports of dry goods since Jan. 1 this year are $53,492,042, and the total amount marketed $54,333,758.

Sales have been officially reported, since our last, for prompt delivery, of 1,422 bales, (of which 370 bales were on last evening,) including 495 bales to shippers, 901 bales to spinners, and 26 bales to speculators. Included in the sales were 225 bales to arrive. FLOUR AND MEAL—Less activity has been reported in State and Western Flour, with prices generally quoted weaker, though holders of desirable lots have been unwilling to make important concessions. Shipping Extras, in lines, have been in less request, and bids have been generally reduced 10c.@15c. ℘ bbl., thus impeding operations. The sales since our last have been 12,100 bbls., of all grades, including poor to good No. 2 Flour at $4@$4 50; poor to very good Superfine State and Western at $4 50@$4 85, chiefly at $4 65@$4 75; inferior to very good Extra State at $4 90@$5 25, chiefly at $5 10@$5 20; very good to very fancy do., $5 25@$5 75; City Mills Extra at $5 35@$6; poor to very good shipping Extra Western at $4 90@$5 25, mainly at $5 10@$5 25; very good to very fancy do., $5 25@$5 75; poor to good round-hoop Ohio at $4 90@$5 25; poor to choice Minnesota Extra, $5 30@$6 10; and trade and Family Extras within the previous range. Sales have been reported of equal to 550 bbls.

GRAIN—The Wheat market has been comparatively tame. The discouraging financial advices from London tended to check the export movement, which was also impeded, to some extent, by the firmer range of ocean freights. The dealings in Spring Wheat have been on a restricted scale. The offerings for prompt delivery have been very moderate, and values have been quoted about steady, though at the close the market was quoted weak. Winter Wheat has been offered with rather more freedom, especially supplies to arrive, and prices have been depressed and irregular. Sales have been reported since our last of 97,000 bushels at $1 16½@$1 17 for No. 2 Milwaukee Spring, afloat, closing at $1 16½ for prime; $1 16 for prime do., in store; $1 13@$1 14½ for No. 2 Chicago Spring, in store, chiefly at $1 14½ for prime, afloat; $1 12 for good do., to arrive next week; $1 18 for choice ungraded Minnesota Spring, $1 18@$1 22 (nominally) for No. 1 Spring; $1 35@$1 38 for Red Western, mostly at $1 36 for good, to arrive soon; $1 40 for good White Western, and within the previous range (nominally) for Amber Western....And for forward delivery the offerings of Spring have been more liberal and urgent, and prices have been quoted 1c.@2c. a bushel lower, without leading to much activity. NOTICE.

We beg to state that on Sunday next we shall begin the publication of an entirely new and original novel, by Mr. Thomas Hardy, author of "A Pair of Blue Eyes," "Far from the Madding Crowd," and other works. It will be entitled and we shall continue its exclusive publication in these columns week by week, until the story is completed. We have no doubt that a novel by one of the most popular writers of the day will add much to the value and interest of the Sunday edition of THE TIMES.

On Thursday night there were eighty-two bills still unsigned in the Governor's hands. Of these he signed fourteen and vetoed four yesterday, leaving sixty-four still untouched on the last day of the period which the amended Constitution allows him for the consideration of bills. It will certainly be no great loss to the people if all of these sixty-four fail to become law in default of the Executive signature. Only it would have been rather more creditable to Gov. TILDEN'S energy and industry had he been better prepared than he is likely to be with reasons for allowing a very large quota of Democratic legislation to drop out of sight. Among the bills remaining in the hands of the Governor there are several about which a plain-spoken veto message in Gov. DIX'S style would be exceedingly desirable. The people are curious to know how Gov. TILDEN stands in relation to the baser elements of his party, and his declared opposition to a few of their jobs which are still before him would be a very excellent means of defining his position.

Two bills of great importance to the citizens of New-York were signed by the Governor yesterday. The one is the Husted bill, providing for rapid-transit railroads in the various counties of the State, and the other is the bill authorizing the New-York Elevated Railroad Company to extend and complete its road. In regard to the latter, the Governor states that it is free from the objections urged against the bill of last year, and that the apprehension that the company might, under its amended charter, make use of the Boulevards has been removed by provisions inserted in the general law. The bill was signed in advance of the general law, (the Husted bill,) "so that its provisions should be controlled by the general law whenever the two are in conflict." As between the Senate bill for rapid transit—that introduced by Mr. MOORE, and so persistently demanded by the New-York Aldermen—and the Husted bill, the Governor had no hesitation in preferring the latter. Now that we have got the requisite legislation, the active prosecution of rapid-transit railroads in this City ought to begin without loss of time. The first practical step in this direction will be taken to-day in the presentation of a petition, printed in another column, requesting the appointment of Commissioners, as provided for in the act.

The American riflemen have been fêted in Dublin with genuine Irish enthusiasm. An "assault at arms" has been gotten up for their benefit, they have been treated to a special theatrical performance and an ode of welcome written for the occasion: and as if to afford them a complete round of sight-seeing, there has been a big fire at which burning whisky flowed through the streets, and an Irish mob broke up barrels and grew hilarious over the abundance of the national beverage. Certainly, the American riflemen are seeing Dublin at its best.

In another column will be found a list of the receipts for last year of religious, charitable, and educational societies and institutions. The receipts from private donations of the leading national societies aggregate $6,000,000, and the receipts of local societies from public and private sources amount to $2,500,000. Considering that a large proportion of the income of the national societies is drawn from New-York, it is safe to say that nowhere in the world can be found anything approaching to the munificent scale of the contributions of this City for benevolent purposes.

An earthquake so severe in character as that just reported from the Western States is rare in the United States on this side of the Sierra Nevada. The shake yesterday seems to have been quite as marked in some localities as many of the minor disturbances to which the people of the Pacific States profess to have become accustomed. It was most vigorous in Ohio, but some of the waves seem to have swept over—or under—Indiana and Illinois. We may suppose that the Western and South-western States are liable to these perturbations, as slight earthquakes have been frequent in that region; and in 1811, during he famous New-Madrid earthquake, an extent of country stretching 300 miles south of the Ohio River was agitated for months, and the most terrifying phenomena were observed.

There is promise of an excellent day's sport at Jerome Park to-day. Five races are on the card, all of which ought to be exciting contests. For the lovers of a long and arduous struggle, there is the three-mile race, for which Springbok, Big Fellow, and Wild Idle are entered; while in short dashes there is a one-mile race, a three-quarter mile race, and one for a mile and one-eighth. The two latter contests bring out respectively nine and eight starters, all of them pretty evenly-matched horses. The steeplechase is likely to be one of the finest ever run at Jerome Park. There are seven entries, and as these are headed by Bullet, Trouble, and Diavolo, the certainty of a really great race is sufficiently obvious. The old course will be followed to-day, so that there is no danger of a recurrence of the confusion which spoiled the steeplechase of Tuesday. Brilliant throughout its course, the Spring meeting of the American Jockey Club bids fair to close with unusual éclat.

THE MERCHANTS AND SPECIE PAYMENTS.

The National Board of Trade, in session in Philadelphia, devoted Thursday to the discussion of the question of a resumption of specie payments. It was not to be expected that there would be unanimity of opinion on the subject, but a very sensible resolution was finally passed by a large majority. The resolution approves the action of Congress in fixing a day for the resumption of specie payments, but expresses concern that no well-considered methods have been adopted for the execution of that measure, and begs Congress to place, at the earliest period possible, suitable means in the hands of the Secretary of the Treasury for the proper execution of the law. Much more radical propositions than this were submitted and warmly supported in the board. One came from Mr. WINSOR, of Philadelphia, who favored the withdrawal and cancelation of the legal-tender notes. Another was presented by Mr. ELLIOT C. COWDIN, of this City, who spoke at length in favor of repealing the legal-tender clause of the act authorizing the issue of the Government notes. But, on the whole, the resolution finally adopted fairly expressed the opinion of the board, and we presume, of the merchants of the country.

Our readers will remember that when the act of Jan. 14 was under discussion, we supported it, though reluctantly, for two reasons: First, because we believed it to be as good as anything that could be got from the last Congress, and second, because it fixed a date for resumption, and as the time approached the country would have either to repudiate that pledge or provide means for carrying it out. This is precisely the way in which the question presented itself to the National Board of Trade. The members of that body see the alternatives which are offered by the act of last session, and they hasten to record their own views decidedly in favor of the only honorable and safe course. It is just what we expected of them, and it was what their interests and their devotion to principle alike required of them. We are decidedly inclined to the opinion that the majority of the people of the country, in all sections, will agree with the merchants of the National Board of Trade, that having made the promise to pay definite, and fixed the date at which it shall be fulfilled, the nation is bound to provide the means of carrying out that promise.

How that is to be done is an important question; but we believe that it is a very simple one. The currency of the country is out of all proportion to the business of the country. It is being piled up in the banks of this City week after week, and month after month. Last Saturday it had reached the enormous sum of $66,822,500. Two months previously the banks had but $48,419,900; and this is an increase of $18,402,900, or thirty-eight per cent. Meanwhile there is no way in which this accumulation of currency can be used to profit. Commercial paper—which is in some regards the very fairest index of the legitimate demand for money in business circles—is freely sought at from three to three and one-half per cent. interest. Demand loans can be had at rates often as low as two per cent. United States bonds, the standard of perfect safety in the way of investment, and paying six per cent. in gold with gold at 117, sell at from 118 to 125, that is, they pay less than six per cent. currency on their market value. These facts show that there is at present more currency in the country than we can possibly use. That currency consists, in the major part, of demand notes of the United States Government. What is more simple, what more natural and business-like than to fund these notes? They must be paid at some time. If they are funded they can be paid gradually, at such time as the condition of the revenue allows, for though the bonds would be payable at a fixed date, there would be practically no difficulty in extending the time of payment indefinitely.

The objections that will be made to this proposition are two. The first is, that it will increase the expenditure for interest. That is true as a statement of fact, but it is not valid as an objection. The country can never pay its debts without sacrifice in some form, and the payment of interest is the least burdensome and most rational method of imposing that sacrifice. Moreover, the amount can easily be made up by proper economy in the administration of our Government. A thorough and searching reform of the civil service, such as Messrs. BRISTOW, JEWELL and PIERREPONT are attempting in their several departments, would go a long way toward meeting the interest on all the greenbacks now out. But these would not all be funded. They are too available as currency to be absolutely abandoned. When the funding had gone on until what remained of the currency was worth as much in use as was offered by the bonds the process would stop. No one can fix this limit exactly, but it would be reached long before one-half of the currency had been put in bonds.

The second objection would be the current one against contraction. But funding in a bond at a low rate of interest would not contract the currency actually needed in business. It would only absorb the surplus, and make the restoration of the specie basis a natural and easy thing. And any process which can restore the country to the use of a currency based on gold ought to be welcomed by those who fear contraction. When that position is reached, the country will have a currency that is not subject to the whims of Congress and that cannot be locked up by the plots of speculators. Legitimate business will then exert its proper influence, and will always get all the currency it needs from the stores of the whole world. The National Board of Trade recommend Congress to provide some means of meeting the pledge made at the last session. We know of no better way than by funding the surplus currency.

INDEPENDENT BOSH.

Some of the independent speakers and writers are persuading themselves, and endeavoring to persuade others, that the people take no interest in parties; that it is only the office-holders and office-seekers who care anything about party organization. Senator BOOTH, of California, is reported as saying that, excepting office-holders, the number of partisans in the country does not exceed the number of inmates in lunatic asylums. In truth, the persons who are not in some way partisans are not only the exception—they are less in number than the office-holders, and quite likely would be outnumbered by the lunatics. Men without political ambition, honestly become attached to a party organization and a party name. They get accustomed to work politically with a certain portion of their fellow-citizens, and are slow to change their associations. There is a kind of affinity about it, like that which draws men together in sets in society or in the church. To most of us the party to which we belong is a political entity, and we always separate it from the rascality which an occasional member of it exhibits, just as we distinguish the church from the occasional offenses of its members.

It is this phase of politics that gives the corrupt politicians their opportunity. If it were true, as Senator BOOTH seems to think, that there was no partisanship outside of those politicians, they would be harmless enough. They might make their nominations, but they could not command the votes necessary to success, and they would soon be obliged to abandon a trade that was unprofitable. A party label would amount to nothing; a party nomination would command no following. Every candidate would be strong only as he was the personal choice of the voter. If we ever reach the point where every voter is sufficiently intelligent to wisely exercise that choice, such a state of independence may bring about a bettter condition of public affairs, but unless human nature changes, we should expect even then to find parties existing as organized masses, only with a somewhat more pronounced assertion of individuality. The thousand ways in which every man is dependent upon his neighbors rather increase with progressive civilization and the more minute division of labor; and religion will have its diverse churches, society its classes, and politics its parties, for a long time to come, and no new era of independence is likely soon to spoil the business of impostors. There is, for instance, an Independent Party in California, and its methods of working through caucuses and conventions is precisely the same as that of the older organizations, and its party discipline and distribution of party patronage, if it has any, are not a whit better than those of the parties it denounces. As soon as it becomes a force of the least account, there is no practice and no trick of the politicians that it is not ready to adopt. It is easy for a party to be honest and preserve its integrity as long as it is in a minority. Its time of trial comes when it has power, and patronage, and control of public affairs. Unfortunately, the party composed of perfect men has not yet made its appearance; and when it does appear it will not be composed of independent voters, with no more cohesion than grains of sand, but it will be a thorough and effective organization, or it will accomplish very little.

We have no objection to an independent, or any new, party that can give us assurance of a better administration of government. What we are looking for is reasonable grounds upon which we can have faith in such a movement. Thus far, the Liberal party, as a party likely to improve politics, has not been a distinguished success. Its first essay gave us the Greeley and Democratic combination, the most ridiculous coalition ever seen in the world. We have only recently called attention to the cost of its administration of affairs in California, the only State in which it has had any approach to political power. It elected a few members of Congress last Fall, but they have yet to prove their superiority over the common run of party candidates; and some of them, certainly, from their previous reputation, do not come particularly well recommended. Its principal achievement thus far has been to give the Democracy hope of a return to power; and no honest, independent voter, who has average intelligence, can see anything in that for which to be thankful.

We believe that a majority—a large majority—of the Republican Party is honest, wants honest government, and is intelligent enough to use the organization to secure it. We can see no hope anywhere else. Independent effort is disorganized effort; it may bring some candidate or party to grief, but it is only by chance that it puts anything better in its place. What is called the Independent Voter is, in fact, nothing more than an Independent Humbug.

A FORGOTTEN MAN.

There was decided in the United States Supreme Court the other day a case which may be properly called historic. It is known as the Broderick will case. It confirms the validity of the last will and testament of DAVID C. BRODERICK, once a Senator of the United States. The decision must recall to the minds of some of our older readers one of the most singular tragedies known in American politics. It is worth while, now that this remarkable story is taking its place in the local history of the time, to recall the main incidents of a noteworthy episode in the political records of the country.

DAVID C. BRODERICK was born in Washington, D. C., and was first known in New-York as a good stone-mason and a leader among the somewhat unruly firemen who made this City a turbulent place twenty-five years ago. Gifted with a certain rude force, he won the affections and esteem of the volunteer firemen and roughs who were such a powerful element in New-York in the old days. The men whom he controlled were rougher than he, but among them he was beloved, feared, and implicitly trusted. His personal courage and magnetism were marvelous, and there was no storm so violent that he could not ride upon it, no exigency so trying that he could not cope with it. He rose to be Chief Engineer in the days when that office gave its incumbent absolute sway over a great mass of willful and almost lawless men. He had a natural turn for politics, and, fascinated by his success while supported by the suffrages of the firemen of New-York, he ran for Congress in 1846, and was defeated. Soon after this disappointment the California gold fever broke out, and he sailed for the new El Dorado of the Pacific, where, in the wild struggle for place and power he made himself felt. In wild, uneasy California was his congenial element. BRODERICK, warm, generous, brave, bold, and indomitable, led manfully in that unique battle of life.

BRODERICK was elected Senator to the first Legislature, and his hand was often heavy on the lawless men who again and again attempted to bring chaos into the State. In 1856 he was elected to the United States Senate. His instincts were all against slavery, and he became the open foe of his colleague, WILLIAM M. GWIN, then the pro-slavery Senator from California. During the mysterious and plotting days of BUCHANAN'S administration, BRODERICK was the bold and fearless champion of freedom in the Territories. He was the trusted friend and supporter of STEPHEN A. DOUGLAS, and when the so-called Lecompton issue came up in Congress, not even DOUGLAS himself was more emphatic and scornful in his denunciations of the Kansas-Nebraska infamy than BRODERICK. He was proscribed by the "Doughfaces" of the North as well as by the slave lords of the South. The enormous patronage of the young State of California was given to GWIN, who, during our late rebellion, received the Dukedom of Sonora from MAXIMILIAN, was in favor with JEFFERSON DAVIS, and was finally captured and immured in Fort Lafayette. A dangerous man to the pro-slavery Democracy, idolized by the liberty-loving masses of California, BRODERICK was to be got rid of. It was said that a caucus of his political enemies was held in San Francisco to decide who should challenge him to fight a duel. One DAVID S. TERRY, an accomplished duelist from a Southern State, and a State Judge, was selected, and BRODERICK, who was neither swordsman nor shot, was challenged to deadly combat. "The Code" ruled in California in those days. BRODERICK was proud, sensitive, and tenacious of his manly dignity. He went out to the field in the gray of the morning, with the fixed consciousness that he was going to his execution. He fell mortally wounded—murdered with deliberation, one may say. His dying words were, "They have killed me for opposing the extension of slavery." One year later these words were inscribed on the banners that bore his figure during the Lincoln campaign in the city where he died.

Over the bier of BRODERICK, exposed in one of the open squares of San Francisco, EDWARD D. BAKER, the friend of LINCOLN, and afterward Senator and General, and who died on the field of battle, pronounced one of the most marvelous funeral orations of modern times. In his eulogy on BRODERICK in the Senate, SEWARD said that impartial history would rank the dead Senator with WINTHROP, VILLIERS, RALEIGH, BALTIMORE, PENN, and OGLETHORPE—the organizers of our States. Then and there the tide turned. Disunion in California was impossible after the death of BRODERICK. His slayer was brought before the courts. But the courts were pro-slavery. There was a change of venue, long delays, and a final trial in a rural town, reached by water from San Francisco. Sail-boats with legal functionaries and witnesses were delayed, clocks were put forward by accommodating creatures, and the case was finally allowed to go by default. TERRY lived long enough to disappear into the Confederacy during the late rebellion.

BRODERICK left no children nor other heir bearing his name. During his lifetime there was none to claim kinship to him, and when he died there was not one to demand his handsome estate by right of inheritance. A will devising his property to certain personal friends, was produced after his death. This, it was claimed, was forged. As legatees or executors under that instrument were JOHN A. MCGLYN, GEORGE WILKES, A. J. BUTLER, and others. The will was soon contested by certain persons who came into the country from Australia, claiming to be the descendants of the sister of BRODERICK, and, therefore, heirs-at-law. The Senator died in 1859; the Supreme Court has just decided against the Australian claimants; and so the long struggle over the personal remainder of BRODERICK terminates at last. His career was strange and eventful; his tragical death sent a shock throughout the entire Union; and the strange drama of his life is now only recalled by a legal decision.

EDUCATION AT THE SOUTH.

There is unquestionably at the South a strong prejudice against bestowing much education on the negro. The belief is ingrained with many of the former slave-holding class that the black is incapable of much mental progress. Then, education tends to do away with class distinctions, and the native-born Southerner has a profound horror of anything which will raise the negro toward a social equality. Education, too, in such colleges as Hampton is associated with the defeat which alone permitted it to be, with the Freedmen's Bureau, black suffrage, the Civil Rights bill, and all the measures and institutions which have so galled many of the whites in the Southern States. The intelligent classes point to what black suffrage is accomplishing in South Carolina, and to the corruption and ignorance of colored voters and legislators, and the average Southerner, very naturally, though not very wisely, reasons that the less that is done for the black, whether in education or administration, the better it will be.

Now, we believe that there are numbers of intelligent and thoughtful white men at the South who are open to reason on this subject, and we desire to submit certain considerations to them, which ought to lessen hostility to such institutions as Hampton College. In Virginia, as a State of superior intelligence, we are aware that there are many who rise above the prejudices of race and caste in this matter. Our correspondent, in describing the recent anniversary exercises of the Hampton Freedmen's College, quoted from the speeches of several most pronounced Southerners, who heartily approved of the plan and workings of this institute. When the friend and biographer of Gen. LEE, and the Superintendent of Public Instruction for Virginia, and such secessionists as Rev. Dr. ADAMS, of Hampton, and the Superintendents of Norfolk and Richmond, applaud and encourage this college, we may be sure that many others will follow in their footsteps throughout the State.

Now, Southern men are to remember that revolutions never go backward. Too much blood and treasure have been poured out to make every man free and (politically) equal under our Constitution, ever to permit political rights to be withdrawn from any class or color in this country. We agree with them that another course toward the South would have been wiser just after the war. We argued then for universal suffrage under an intelligence test for both white and black. Such a fruit of victory would have won us a lasting peace, and a gradual political and social elevation of the ignorant class at the South. But the extremists had their way, and we shall reap for years at the South, as we have done at the North, the fruits of ignorant suffrage. Still, this cannot now be changed. The South must have a large ignorant class of voters, with all the consequent dangers to public morals and public security. Evidently the only possible cure and safeguard for such evils is in popular education, and in training a class of colored leaders who shall share in the best results of the culture and moral education of the whites. If Southern men will reflect, they will see that young men going out among the blacks from such a Christian and wisely-conducted college as the Hampton are at once a seed of order, wisdom, and religion among the ignorant, superstitious, and easily-led freedmen. The graduates of such a college will everywhere teach lessons of self-control, good sense, virtue, and decorum among the peasantry. They form the natural link between the ignorant black masses and white culture. Now, such an influence is all in favor of reasonable subordination, of order, of honesty in public matters, of pecuniary fidelity, and of wisdom in all affairs concerning the two races. Such young men, thus trained, are not likely to be demagogues or public swindlers. And yet they will enjoy the confidence of their race as no whites ever can. Thus far they have naturally avoided political life; and it would not surprise us if they should prefer to recommend the whites to their countrymen as political leaders.

We hold it to be the highest of all interests for the South to encourage just such institutions as this Hampton College. It is not creditable to the intelligence of Southern men that Northern benefactions mainly support this college and other similar freedmen's institutions. Freedmen's colleges and freedmen's schools are the life-blood of the South.

THE OLD CONTROVERSY.

Prof. BOYESEN, of Cornell University, availing himself of the opportunity afforded him in the Commencement week lecture course, has renewed the advocacy of German literature as a university study. At the outset of his remarks, he referred very plainly to the late war between Germany and France. His method of argument leads at first to the inference that it is not on account of any special or pre-eminent merit in either German literature or the German language that it should be studied, but because the French were defeated at Sedan. The forces which met there represent, in his opinion, two irreconcilable civilizations, one of which has had its day, while the other is only coming to the front. France, he tells us, has blossomed, and is fading, but Germany is only beginning to develop that supremacy of power which shall lead the nations, and finally sweep all that is anti-German from the face of the earth. For this reason German should be studied in the public schools and universities.

To the logic of this, most impartial persons will take exception. It is doubtful whether, outside of Germany and the circle of German partisans, there are many, if any, who will be ready to accept this theory of French decadence. French and German civilization are distinctly marked and different; but there is no reason why they should not exist together, nor any evidence that either the one is falling into decay or the other rising into undisputed authority. They are so essentially complementary, the one of the other, that it would be a loss to the world if either should perish. The recent misfortunes of France, so far from showing that that nation is affected with any symptoms of permanent decadence, as Mr. BOYESEN seems to see, rather illustrate her extreme vitality, and foreshadow a long endurance of her influence as a centre of the highest and most powerful civilization.

But while this part of Mr. BOYESEN'S argument must be condemned, his honesty must be approved. We have heard much of late, and only of late, of the merits of German literature, but nobody, so far as we are aware, has had the courage to tell us, although everybody made the surmise, that it is all on account of Sedan. The exultation of the Germans over their victorious campaign is quite pardonable, even though their exuberance of joy has led many of them, like Count MUNSTER, in London, into errors of a somewhat serious kind. But we very much fear whether they do not overestimate the influence of their march to Paris. The world is not yet at their feet, and if they are not careful other nations will begin to think their mistake, in not so regarding the fact, is likely to lead to results that are rather ludicrous than otherwise. It is certainly too much to ask us to adopt the German language because thus far United Germany has proved herself stronger than France upon the battle-fields of the Rhine.

If he had omitted this part of his argument, Prof. BOYESEN would have been less candid, but he would have saved himself from a very weak point of reasoning. If German literature is to be popular, it must become so on its own merits. In the second portion of his lecture, Prof. BOYESEN, in praising the wealth of that literature, and in dwelling upon the fertility of the German language, adopted something like this view. Making due allowance for some exaggeration of eulogy, his advocacy, though strong, was in many respects just. We cannot indorse all his praises, nor accept all his opinions, but there is a very strong case, generally admitted, and, therefore, not necessary to be enforced, in favor of the German language being made an essential part of a university course. Mr. BOYESEN attempted to draw a comparison between the relative merits of German and some other languages. In this he showed himself not an impartial judge, and he might have spared himself the reproach, for no comparison is of any weight. Exactly the same arguments which can be brought in favor of German as a branch of liberal education may also be adduced in favor of French. In many branches of knowledge French literature is much richer and more valuable than the German; in others German literature must be awarded the higher place. No question of rivalry ought, therefore, to be raised even on the ground of comparative value, to say nothing of Metz and Sedan. University professors should take a wider and more liberal view than that. They, as well as all who have any share in regulating education here, should remember first of all that English is and will ever remain the language of the American nation. After that French and German have equal claims to attention. There is no wisdom in trying to set up either at the expense of the other. Neither is necessary in the primary schools, but both are important in the universities, and without suffering any question of antagonism on the ground of nationality, the heads of our colleges would do well to insist that a complete university education should always imply a tolerable acquaintance with the languages and literature of both countries. The public readily acknowledge this necessity, and the leaders of education should now begin to resist contentions which are not a little unseemly, because they are based upon issues that are totally irrelevant and worthless.

AMUSEMENTS.

TO-DAY'S MATINEES.

A matinée performance of "The Donovans," and the last representation but one of that piece, is to occur at Wallack's Theatre to-day. At Robinson Hall "Giroflé-Girofla" is to be sung in English. At the Fifth Avenue Theatre "The Big Bonanza" will be acted afternoon and evening, and there will be the usual après-midi entertainments at the Bowery and Olympic Theatres and at Gilmore's Concert Garden.

HOME GOSSIP.

Mr. J. L. Toole acted thrice this week in Montreal.

Mme. Di Murska and M. and Mme. Sauret go to Australia on June 21.

"Bryant's Minstrels" were this week at Ford's Opera-house, in Baltimore.

Professor Alexandre Herrmann performed this week at the Tremont Temple in Boston.

"The Big Bonanza" was acted this week at McVicker's, in Chicago, by Mr. Daly's wandering company.

The burlesque of "Evangeline" was played this week by Mr. Beckett and the company at the Globe Theatre in Boston.

Manager Hooley is delighting San Francisco play-goers with a new version of "Ultimo," the original of "The Big Bonanza."

Mme. Ristori was this week at Maguire's Theatre, in San Francisco, and Mme. Janauschek was at the California Theatre.

"La Bayadere," which is described as Auber's musical and terpsichorean drama, was brought out Monday at the Boston Theatre, with Messrs. Eugene, Clarke, and Bartleman, Mlle. Estelle, and Mlles. Morlacchi and Adriana.

Mr. Edward Arnott acted at the Chestnut Street Theatre, in Philadelphia, this week. He appeared in a French melodrama entitled "Rabagas." This, according to the local papers, on examination, proved not to be an adaptation of Sardou's satirical comedy, but a Porte St. Martin melodrama, with plenty of mystery, crime, and gore.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

Frederick Lemaitre, the actor, is lying dangerously ill.

M. Georges Bizet, the composer, has just died at Paris at the early age of thirty-six years. His last opera, "Carmen," had a great success at the Opéra Comique.

Mrs. Weldon, who is at present living in Paris, has commenced in the French law courts, an action for breach of contract and for libel against M. Gounod. The articles which she considers libelous appeared in a Paris journal, but the composer denies that he is the author of them.

Contrary to all prevision, the Administration of Domains has decided to pull down all that remains of the old Opera-house, that is to say, the building in the Rue Drouot still occupied by the management and archives of the theatre. In the course of a week or two the materials resulting from the demolition, estimated at 60,000 francs, will be put up for sale, and the site be completely cleared.

The Duke of Edinburgh has, it is understood, composed, and in private played, several pieces of his own—solos for the violin and violoncello, and duets for the violin and flute. It is likely they will soon be published to the world. We learn that the most ambitious of these musical novelties—a concerto (quintet) in E minor, has recently been played, in an anonymous form, in many London drawing-rooms.

The firm of Breitkopf, of Leipzig, which has published the complete edition of the works of Beethoven, now proposes to do the same with the compositions of Mozart, one-third of which are in manuscript, provided a subscription of £3,000 be raised, as the cost of the engraving and printing will be at the least £8,000. At Salzburg, the place of Mozart's birth, at Vienna and at Leipzig, considerable sums have been already contributed by the admirers of the music of Mozart.

The Association des Artistes Dramatiques, presided over by Baron Taylor, has just appointed a committee to take measures for the erection of a monument to Samson. As is known, that great actor died during the Commune, and honor was not rendered to his remains with the pomp due to him. Among the names of the persons selected to form part of that body are those of M. Delaunay and M. Legouvé. The clever academician is only continuing the work which he commenced last Winter in devoting two lectures to the deceased. As for the other gentleman, every one is aware how great an admirer he was of Samson. The Théâtre-Français, from which the initiative of this movement arises, has subscribed 1,000 francs, and the Minister of the Fine Arts 500 francs.

Mr. Edward Dannreuther, in answer to an inquiry as to the advisability of building a music hall after the model of the Albert Hall, writes: A copy of the Albert Hall, either full-sized or reduced, would be a mistake. First, as the hall stands it is not fit for instrumental music, as neither stringed nor wood-wind instruments can fill its vast arena. Forty fiddles sound like so many mosquitoes. Vocal solos are heard, but not well; recitations are not intelligible, and a singer's forte hardly reaches a mezzo-forte, even at the risk of cracking his throat. Second, as the circular shape of the hall inevitably induces the sound to travel round and round, and, as consequently, there are echoes and dull sounding places innumerable, it is evident that a copy on a reduced scale would be none the less unsatisfactory. From an artistic point of view a room fit for perfect performances of Beethoven, Berlioz, Wagner, should not hold more than 3,000 persons at the outside. It should provide space for an orchestra of, say 140 at most, and a chorus of 300. With such forces, or with less in proportion—say orchestra of eighty and chorus of 150 picked voices, the best results can be obtained. Wagner's Theatre, at Bayreuth, will contain only 1,500 available seats. Our best concert-room here—St. James' Hall—has about 1,800; it is perfect for an orchestral performance but decidedly too large for concerts or chamber music.

THE NATIONAL BOARD OF TRADE.

FOURTH DAY'S SESSION—THE RECIPROCITY TREATY—INDORSING THE CENTENNIAL—THE TRANSPORTATION QUESTION.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 18.—The first business which engaged the attention of the members of the National Board of Trade at the opening of the fourth day's session this morning, was the report of the Committee on Postal Telegraph Rates. The report favored the recognition of private enterprise, and on motion was postponed. Mr. Bayard, of Baltimore, presented a resolution on the subject of bills of lading, providing for their full and unmistakable stamping; also a resolution restricting the terms of all bills of lading to a compliance with the terms of the common law. The resolution was adopted. The rules were suspended, and a resolution was passed authorizing the transmission of Mr. Bayard's resolution to the Chamber of Commerce of Great Britain. On motion of Mr. Parker, of New-York, resolutions providing for the more careful scrutiny of shippers' manifests were passed. The regular order of business was then proceeded with, the consideration of the Reciprocity Treaty with the Dominion of Canada being the first subject taken up. Mr. McCrea, of Chicago, opened the subject, and was followed by Mr. Patterson, of Montreal, who thought that if the present treaty had been so framed as to only include the products of the United States and Canada, it would have been more satisfactory. He lauded the idea of the treaty, and felt certain that it would benefit both countries. The speaker went further on the subject, and favored the organization of an International Board of Trade. Its meetings would bring together the merchants of the world and prove of great benefit to commerce. Speeches favorable to the ideas set forth by Mr. Patterson, and for the treaty, were made by Messrs. John Price Wetherill and George L. Bugby, of Philadelphia; Hayes, of Detroit, and Boynton, of New-York. The latter gentleman moved the previous question, which brought forth a vote on the resolution, and it was adopted as the sentiment of the board. The resolution provided for memorializing Congress, and the appointment by the President of the United States of not less than five merchants and business men acquainted with the subject to meet a like commission from the Dominion Government, said joint commission to be authorized to suggest and recommend the details of the provisions of such treaty. Mr. Henry, of New-York, moved for the appointment of a committee of five to attend the meeting of the Dominion Board of Trade next January. Adopted. Mr. Heald, of Wilmington, Del., offered resolutions looking to a better development of trade with the Central and South American States. It was agreed to refer the resolutions to the Executive Committee, with a request to report at next annual meeting.

On motion of Mr. Peddie, of Newark, N. J., resolutions were passed indorsing the Centennial as an assured success, the members basing their idea on the actual views of the buildings gained by their visit to the park. Also requesting aid for the great Centennial from all the States. Mr. Stranahan, of New-York, heartily seconded the resolution, and it was carried amid applause.

The usual complimentary resolutions and votes of thanks were passed. The report of the Committee on Transportation was presented and read by Mr. Thurber, of New-York. The resolutions were taken up separately. The second one provided that where railroad lines were confined to one State, the Legislature of that State be requested to enact laws for that road, and where lines traverse more than one State, the General Government be requested to legislate for such roads. Mr. Holton, of Wisconsin, took strong grounds against this resolution, and said he wanted "hands off," which was the sentiment of the residents of his section. He bid defiance to Wall street, and said if those men would stay at home, the railroads of the West would soon be in a condition to render their stock desirable investments.

The resolution was laid on the table on Mr. Grosvenor's motion. A section of the fourth resolution proposed that there should be posted at the different railway and marine lines of transportation a schedule of the rates of fare and tariff to all points, with the distance, and that such rates be not changed unless thirty days' notice be given to the public. The resolution was tabled. Another section which proposed legislation to prevent railroads from turning into stock their surplus earnings, was laid on the table. The next section proposed legislation to secure a receipt from railway companies for freight transported over their roads, and that the bulk be the same when delivered as it was when received. Adopted. The last proposition for consideration in the official programme related to modifications in the rulings of the Treasury Department in regard to damages on importations of merchandise, they being injurious to the interests of the interior importers. The resolution was adopted. The report of Mr. Nourse on savings banks, which had been presented before, was accepted. The President stated that the time and place of the next meeting would be fixed by the Executive Council at their meeting in Washington in February next. The board then adjourned sine die. In the afternoon the board, on invitation of the Philadelphia Maritime Exchange, enjoyed an excursion on the river front, visiting the American steam-ship dock, Roach's works at Chester, and other places of interest.

THE INDIAN RAIDERS.

FOUR HUNDRED HORSES STOLEN FROM A SETTLEMENT NEAR THE UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The following telegram was received by Adjutant General Townsend this morning from Gen. Whipple, of Gen. Sherman's staff:

ST. LOUIS, MO., June 17, 1875.

To Adjutant General Townsend, Washington, D. C.:

A dispatch just received from Gen. Sheridan states that a large war party of Sioux Indians attacked the settlements on Rock Creek, just south of the Union Pacific Railroad, on the 5th inst., and stole about 400 horses, which were driven north and secured, notwithstanding the efforts of the troops at Forts Steel, Fetterman, and Laramie to recapture them. Another war party of seventy-five were seen on the 14th inst. just south of Camp Robinson, supposed to be going south. The troops at Sidney Barracks have been ordered to attack this party, and give it a severe punishment, if possible. The period for the annual depredations of the Sioux has now arrived, and unless we strike some of these parties the settlements will be greatly annoyed. Gen. Sheridan says he presumes it is well known to the Indian Bureau that the Sioux Indians have violated, almost every month in the year, in the most outrageous manner, nearly every provision of the treaty of 1869.

(Signed,) WILLIAM D. WHIPPLE,
Assistant Adjutant General.

THE OHIO DEMOCRATIC STATE COMMITTEE.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 18.—The State Democratic Executive Committee met this morning, and organized by electing the following officers: John G. Thompson, Chairman; Amos Layman, Secretary; Jacob Reinhard, Treasurer; and Robert H. Lennox, Clerk—all re-elected.

WASHINGTON.

NOTES FROM THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

TRIAL OF THE POSTAL-CONTRACT SWINDLERS—THE PROSPECT FOR CONVICTION NOT BRIGHT.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The trial of Hinds, the postal contractor, will probably be concluded to-morrow. The testimony is all in and the arguments have begun. The testimony against Hinds in the case now hearing is chiefly made up of the statements of Kettle and Channell, who are claimed by the defense to be particeps criminis, and their evidence uncorroborated is claimed not to be sufficient to secure conviction. The defense will also claim that if the assertions of the prosecution are proved to be true, Hinds has committed no offense punishable under existing law. It cannot be said that the chances of a conviction are very flattering. The Post Office Department has little control of the case in court, which is managed by District Attorney Fisher. Two or three other indictments are pending against Hinds, and one of the cases is, seemingly, stronger than that for which he is now on trial. A failure to secure his conviction in some of the cases will lead to some very pertinent and proper inquiries respecting the reasons why, especially if it appears that the offense is one covered by the letter of the law.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

NORTHERN PACIFIC BONDHOLDERS.

The adjourned meeting of the resident Northern Pacific bondholders held here this evening was favorable to the foreclosure and reorganization of the company, but disposed to ask a modification of the present order of the court regarding the disposition of the proceeds of sale. Final action was postponed to a further meeting. In order to give the Maryland and Virginia bondholders an opportunity to attend, parties largely interested have made that request. The next meeting will doubtless appoint a committee to meet the convention of bondholders that has been called to meet in New-York on the 30th inst.

MR. SAVILLE, INDIAN AGENT, AND PROF. MARSH.

While Indian Agent Saville was in Washington with the Sioux Indians he wrote his resignation of that office, saying that in consequence of the repeated attacks upon him, by the unwarrantable and slanderous statements of certain irresponsible and maliciously disposed parties, he finds his influence with the Indians damaged, and the work of the Episcopal Church, at whose instance he was appointed, embarrassed. He desires that if any charges are resting against him which require investigation the acceptance of his resignation be deferred until he is made acquainted with their character. The resignation is accompanied by a letter recounting the action of Prof. Marsh, and affirms that he has never issued any unmerchantable supplies, and seeks an investigation. Commissioner Smith states that there are no charges against him at the Department. Prof. Marsh was requested to prefer his charges in writing, which he has not yet done.

BIDS FOR ENVELOPE CONTRACTS.

Bids were opened at the Post Office Department to-day for supplying the department with dead-letter, post office and registered package envelopes. The following named persons were the only bidders: George H. Pevy, New-York; George F. Nesbitt & Co., New-York; the Morgan Envelope Company, Springfield, Mass.; the Plimpton Manufacturing Company, Hartford, Conn. George F. Nesbitt & Co. were the lowest aggregate bidders and will be awarded the contract.

DUTY ON CANS OR PACKAGES CONTAINING FISH.

The Department of State having called upon the Secretary of the Treasury for an expression of his views on the question presented by the British Minister involving a construction of article 21 of the Treaty of Washington in connection with the Tariff act of Feb. 8, 1875, relating to the free importation of fish the product of Canadian fisheries, the Secretary of the Treasury replied substantially as follows: That it being conceded that the imposition of the duty in question, viz., on "cans or packages made of tin or other material containing fish of any kind admitted free of duty under any existing law or treaty," being in pursuance of an express provision in the act referred to, the Secretary has no alternative but to enforce the law. That as to any apparent conflict between the treaty and the act of Congress, it would not only be premature for him to anticipate, by an expression of his views, the possible future action of Congress on the subject, but that while he would be slow to so construe an act of Congress of doubtful construction as to do violence to a treaty stipulation, both the treaty and the act, having the force of law, the language of the act in the present case seems so clear as not to admit of doubt, and therefore there is no room for construction. For these reasons the Secretary, while declining to express any opinion as to whether there has or has not been a violation of treaty stipulations in the premises, has no hesitation in stating that he regards the exaction of said duty as necessarily enforced in pursuance of existing law.

NOTES FOR REDEMPTION.

The Treasurer requests that no legal tender or fractional currency be sent for redemption that will reach the Treasury between the 25th of June and the 1st of July, except the remittances by national banks on account of the five per cent. deposits, which should be forwarded as usual. This request is made in order that the notes and currency on hand shall be reduced to the least possible amount in anticipation of the count to be made on the 1st of July. A similar request has also been made in regard to the forwarding of national bank notes for redemption.

THE TREASURY.

The following were the balances in the Treasury at the close of business to-day: Currency, $4,023,741; special deposit of legal tenders for the redemption of certificates of deposit, $62,945,000; coin, (including in coin certificates, $19,537,200,) $76,558,629; outstanding legal tenders, $377,064,000. The internal revenue receipts to-day were $325,373, and the Custom's receipts, $650,183.

CHOLERA ON THE STEAMER SACO.

A private letter received here brings the intelligence that the Asiatic cholera has made its appearance on the United States steamer Saco, in the Asiatic station, and out of five cases four of them terminated fatally. It is believed, however, that the progress of the disease has been arrested.

APPOINTMENT.

The President has appointed Edward Stevenson, of Michigan, Register of the Land Office at Ionia, Mich., vice James H. Kidd, resigned.

Pillsbury is detached from the Swatara and ordered to duty on the Coast Survey. Gunner William T. Devlan is ordered to the receiving-ship Potomac, at Philadelphia.

TROTTING.

JACKSON, Mich., June 18.—The fourth and last day of the Spring meeting of the Jackson Horse-breeders' Association was attended by fully 8,000 people, and closed a highly successful meeting.

The first race was for 2.40 horses, with seven entries, five of which started. Rival won the first heat, and Monroe the second, third, and fourth heats and the race. Rival second and Mentor Maid third. Time—2:36½, 2:36, 2:31½, 2:31½.

The second race was for horses that have never beaten 2:34. Seven entered for this race and all started. The race was won by Gold Seal in three straight heats, Basil Duke second, and Jeremiah third. Time—2:32¾, 2:28¼, 2:31.

The third race, free to all, was very exciting and hotly contested. Five entered and four started. American Girl took the first heat, and Bodine the second, third, and fourth heats and the race, American Girl second, and Fred. Hooper third. Time—2:28½, 2:24¼, 2:28, 2:27½.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 18.—The concluding races at Narragansett Park were postponed until to-morrow because of rain.

RAILROAD DECISION IN GEORGIA.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 18.—The Supreme Court has reversed the decision of Judge Hopkins, of the Fulton Superior Court, in regard to taxing the Western and Atlantic Railroad, the Georgia Railroad, and the Augusta and Waynesboro Railroad, and holds that the roads are only liable to a tax of one and one-half per cent. on the net earnings. The court holds that the Central Railroad and South-western Railroad must pay the tax levied, and sustains Judge Hopkins' decision in regard to these roads.

AN EARTHQUAKE IN THE WEST.

THE SHOCK FELT IN OHIO, INDIANA, AND ILLINOIS.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The Signal Service Observer at Indianapolis reports to-day as follows: "At 7:43 A. M. a slight earthquake felt; also in Anderson, Vincennes, Ind., and Columbus, Ohio."

SHELVING IN A DRUG STORE THROWN DOWN IN SIDNEY, OHIO.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 18.—Reports from Urbana, Sidney, and other towns in South-western Ohio state that about 11 o'clock this morning there was quite a severe shaking of the earth in that region. In Sidney the greater part of the shelving in the drug store was thrown to the floor, a large number of buildings were shaken very perceptibly, cracking walls, and the inhabitants, alarmed, ran out of the houses into the streets. A large steam-boiler was moved nearly a foot from its original position.

LATER.—The earthquake was very generally felt at Indianapolis, Ind.

THE EARTHQUAKE SEVEREST IN OHIO.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 18—A slight shock of earthquake was felt here this morning at about 9 o'clock. Buildings were shaken to a considerable extent, and in some instances windows rattled. The following report will show the effect at various other points in this State and Ohio: At Anderson, Ind., a very strong shock was felt, shaking all the buildings in the town. At Jeffersonville, Ind., it was felt quite sensibly. At Vincennes, Ind., the shock was very heavy. At Union, Ind., it was slight. At Terre Haute, Lafayette, Peru, Logansport, Kokomo, Argos, and Richmond, Ind., it was not felt at all. At Anna, Ohio, six miles north of Sidney, on the Dayton and Michigan Railroad, it cracked all the houses, knocked down chimneys, and disturbed goods on the shelves in stores. No reports of loss of life have yet been received. At De Graff, Ohio, the shock was very strong, jarring the buildings to their foundations. THE CENTENNIAL BUILDINGS.

VISIT OF PRESIDENT GRANT TO THE PHILADELPHIA EXHIBITION GROUNDS—GREAT PROGRESS MADE ON THE STRUCTURES—THE PAPAL ENVOYS' VISIT TO THE GROUNDS.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., June 18.—About a week ago the President of the United States expressed a desire to make a personal inspection of the buildings and grounds for the Centennial International Exhibition. Arrangements were accordingly made for his visit and for his reception officially by the Mayor of the city, Mr. Stokley; the President of the Centennial Board of Finance, Mr. John Welsh; the President of the Park Commission, Mr. Morton McMichael; the Chairman of the Committee on Plans and Grounds, Mr. Thomas Cochran; and Mr. John Baird of the same committee. The visit was made to-day, the President, accompanied by Gen. Babcock, Mr. Sartoris, and Mr. George W. Childs, having come up from Long Branch by the early morning train, arriving in Camden at about 10 o'clock. The party was met in Camden by the officials above named, accompanied by Hon. A. E. Borie and W. V. McKean. They breakfasted at the Continental Hotel, where they were met by Mr. P. Cunliffe Owen, Col. Sandford, and Mr. Cundell, of the British Centennial Commission, and Mr. A. J. Drexel. At 11:30 they started for the park, and there spent about two hours in making a complete tour of the buildings and grounds, beginning with the offices, then through the entire stretch of Machinery Hall, the main exhibition building, Memorial Hall, and the Horticultural building, in all about four-fifths of a mile, the length of the several structures. The President expressed his surprise and gratification with respect to both the vast dimensions of the buildings and their rapid progress toward completion. Although he had kept himself informed concerning the progress of the work of construction, it was not until he had personally inspected the buildings and grounds that he had a full conception of the immense scale upon which they had been prepared, or of the large extent of work already accomplished. It is not unlikely that he may have had some natural anxiety about the timely completion of such a vast range of buildings; but if he has heretofore had the least misgiving as to the seasonable completion of the work, it was dissipated by his visit to-day. After the tour of the buildings and grounds, the party drove to Belmont and back by George's Hill to take the 3 o'clock train from Camden.

Mgr. Roncetti, the Papal Ablegate, Dr. Ubaldi, and several Catholic prelates also visited the Centennial grounds this forenoon. At Memorial Hall ex-Mayor Fox addressed the reverend gentlemen, and directed his words of welcome particularly to the Papal Ablegate. The latter replied in Italian, his remarks being interpreted by Rev. Dr. Seton. From the Centennial grounds the party were driven to the Seminary of St. Charles Borromeo, where they were entertained by the priests of this diocese.

Mr. J. Perrault, Secretary of the Canadian Commission reached this city to-day, and held a conference with Mr. Owen, of the British Commission, relative to Canada's participation in the exhibition.

RAPID TRANSIT.

PROMPT MEASURES TO BE ADOPTED TO PUT THE ACT IN FORCE.

The Governor having signed the Husted Rapid Transit bill, a large number of prominent tax-payers will wait upon Judge Donohue this morning, between the hours of 9 and 11 o'clock, for the purpose of signing an application setting forth the need of a steam railroad in the county, and verifying the same upon oath, in compliance with Section 1 of the act. After the application shall have been so verified, the gentlemen interested in the movement, in company with Mr. C. H. Roosevelt, will wait upon the Mayor, and present a petition to him for the appointment of five Commissioners to carry out the provisions of the act. The following is a copy of the petition to be presented to the Mayor, and it has been signed by prominent citizens:

To Hon. William H. Wickham, Mayor of the City of New-York:

Your petitioners, residents, householders and tax-payers of the City, County, and State of New-York, beg leave to bring to your attention the following facts:

First—That at the recent session of the Legislature an act was passed entitled "An act further to provide for the construction and operation of a steam railway or railways in the counties of this State."

Second—That the first section of the said act reads as follows:

"SECTION 1. Whenever it shall appear by the application of fifty reputable house-holders and tax-payers of any county in this State, verified upon oath before a Justice of the Supreme Court, that there is need in such county of a steam railway, or railways, for the transportation of passengers, mails, or freight, the Board of Supervisors of said county may, within thirty days after presentation to them of such application, duly verified, as aforesaid, appoint five Commissioners who shall be residents of the said county, and who shall have full power and authority to do and provide all that they are hereinafter directed to do and provide, and a certificate of whose appointment, signed by the Chairman and Clerk of each board, shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State, and a duplicate thereof in the office of the Clerk of such county; but whenever any such proposed Railway shall be wholly within the limits of any city in the State, then such application shall be made only to the Mayor of said city, and such Mayor shall appoint such Commissioners as aforesaid.

Third—That your petitioners are each of them householders and tax-payers of the City of New-York, and as such do severally depose and say "that there is need in the City and County of New-York of a steam railway or railways for the transportation of passengers, mails, or freight."

Wherefore your petitioners respectfully apply to you for the appointment of five Commissioners for the purposes, and with the power, authority, and subject to the duties that are provided in and by the said act.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Members of Rapid Transit Association, and all others interested in the subject, are requested to attend before Judge Donohue this morning from 9 to 11 o'clock.

"THE BURIAL OF THE ANCIENT."

The ceremony of the burial of the "ancient" was celebrated last evening at Columbia College by the members of the Sophomore Class. The funeral cortège was formed at the Worth Monument, the procession starting at 10:45, and marching up Fifth avenue to Fiftieth street, serenading on the way Rutgers College and the Windsor Hotel. Reaching the college the burial ceremonies were performed over a fire on the green, the funeral oration being delivered by Thomas S. Drowne, Jr., and the memorial poem by Gustave C. Kobbe. At the conclusion of the ceremonies President Barnard was serenaded, and in response to the compliment he made a brief and appropriate speech. The exercises were concluded by a collation, at which numerous brief addresses were delivered. The "ancient" is the slang students' name for a text book, of which the full title is Bojeun's Manual of Grecian and Roman Antiquities.

LOSSES BY FIRE.

A disastrous conflagration occurred at Barrie, Ontario, yesterday morning. The fire originated in the out-buildings adjoining Woods' drug store and spread very rapidly. In a short time the whole south half of the wooden block between Clapperton, Dunlap, and Owen streets was in flames. Five three-story brick buildings next fell a prey to the flames. Twelve other buildings in the same block were slightly damaged. The following is a list of the names of the sufferers: Francis Stephens, one dwelling and the Bank Hotel; B. Hind's store; John Lee, store, occupied by Ewan, dry goods; D. Oliva, store, occupied by John Woods, druggist; T. D. McConkey, six stores, occupied respectively by C. H. Ross, dry goods; J. Plaxton, tinsmith; D. Thompson, gunsmith; A. C. Graham, fruiter; A. McKenzie, watchmaker; W. Edmondson & Son, bakers; the Dominion Telegraph office; Samuel Wright, store, occupied by James Wood, boots and shoes; Thomas Johnson, store, occupied by Watson & Co., druggists; J. Plaxton, store, occupied by Benson, barber, and Oxenham, confectioner; C. Morris, store, occupied by J. P. Kidd, druggist; R. King, two buildings, occupied respectively by R. Crompton & Co.; J. H. Hastings, watchmaker; E. B. Crompton's Dominion Hotel building, occupied by R. Gregg; W. H. Crosby's livery stables and dwelling, and also a dwelling occupied by McGuire, carriage painter; McArther's brick block, three stores, occupied by Purvis Bros., agricultural implements; C. A. Perkins, grocers, and J. G. Strong, dry goods; McCarthy & Boyce's law office; Gavilier & Thompson's architect's office; the Good Templars' Hall; Orange Hall and Odd-fellows' Hall; an unoccupied store adjoining; Hunter, Morrell & Co., grocers. The following is a list of the stores damaged and goods removed: Miss Morton, millinery; J. Montgomery, boots and shoes and groceries; D. Farquahar & Son, grocers; H. Bennett, clothier; Edwards & Lacid, stationery; Montreal Telegraph office; P. Hickey, grocer; A. P. McNab & Sons, clothiers; Mrs. Caisse, ice-cream saloon; C. Harrison & Son, dry goods. The following are the losses of insurance companies, as near as can be learned at present: Liverpool, London, and Globe, $10,000; Royal Canadian, $10,000; Western, $10,000; British American, $8,000; Home District, $3,000; Gore Mutual, $4,000; Hastings, $4,500. The total loss exceeds $100,000. The origin of the fire is unknown.

About 6:30 o'clock last evening a fire was discovered on the top floor of the five-story brick building Nos. 116, 117, and 118 South street, occupied as a cigar manufactory by S. H. Bassford. Damage to stock, $300; insured. Lawrence Earis, occupying the first floor as a clothing store, had his stock damaged $100 by water. Joseph Stiner & Co., occupying part of the first floor as a tea store, had their stock damaged $100 by water. The building, owned by William Onderdonk, was damaged $1,000; insured. Theodore H. Ernest, a member of Hook and Ladder Company No. 1, had his right leg broken by a ladder falling on him.

The premises occupied by Vian Brothers, bakers, on St. Mary's street, Montreal, were almost entirely destroyed by fire yesterday morning. The loss amounts to $35,000; insured for $25,000 in the Royal Canadian, North British, American, and Royal, of England.

A fire yesterday morning in Barrie, Ontario, destroyed the greater portion of the business section of the town. One-half of Dunlap street (both sides) has been destroyed, and the fire is still burning. A steam engine has arrived from Collingwood, and help is expected from Toronto.

Information at Ottawa, Ontario, speaks of more disastrous bush fires on Russell Road. The fire is devastating everything in its path, and rain is anxiously looked for.

The shear works in Naugatuck, Conn., were burned yesterday morning. Loss, $10,000; insurance, $5,000.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE CASE OF REV. J. H. FAIRCHILD.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In Mr. Beach's argument on the 10th inst., the following passage occurred, as reported in your columns:

"Rev. J. H. Fairchild, a leading Congregational Pastor of Boston, * * * was accused of seduction. On his trial before a council, a letter was read in which he admitted that he had bound the girl by solemn oath to deny that she even knew him. The council * * * gave him the benefit of a doubt, and he was not convicted. He afterward attempted to preach in Boston, but met with no success; was there openly charged by a paper with adultery; * * * brought an action of libel against the publisher, and * * * was defeated * * * upon a justification of the alleged libel."

As I was a member of that ecclesiastical council, was present during his subsequent trial on a charge of adultery before a civil tribunal, and was also a member of the ecclesiastical council which afterward installed him in a new pastoral charge, I may, perhaps, be credited in the following statements: There was no such letter produced before the judicatory council. Mr. Fairchild was convicted by them, and deposed from the ministry, with this remarkable limitation, however, "until he may be acquitted by some civil tribunal." From New-Hampshire, to whose civil courts he was not amenable, he went to Boston for the express purpose of yielding himself to the authorities of the State which had jurisdiction in his case. His trial was thorough and protracted. He was acquitted. Under the provision of the Council, by this acquittal, he was restored to the ministry. After this he was honorably installed as Pastor of a church in South Boston—the place of his former ministry—by a regular Council, of which the venerable Leonard Woods, D. D., of Andover, was a member. In this new relation he continued for years, (I think until his death,) and with as much "success" as ordinarily attends the Christian ministry. He did indeed bring an action of libel. But the suit was not against the publisher of a paper; and it was after his acquittal by a jury. He failed in the suit; not, however, by "justification of the alleged libel," but on purely technical grounds of ecclesiastical usage and privilege. According to Mr. Beach's statement, he was guilty. According to mine he was innocent—if the verdict of the jury and the action of the installing council are to be regarded. I make this communication simply because it seems due that the name of one man (at least) should be shielded from a libel thus publicly uttered over his grave. Again: If Mr. Beach was so grossly mistaken in this case, may not the other and like statements be properly received "with a grain of salt"? S. H.

A CURIOUS AFFAIR.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

By what authority do Messrs. Caldwell and Murray control the seating of visitors to the City Court of Brooklyn, where the Tilton-Beecher case is being tried? The writer was in the room at 10:15 o'clock yesterday (Tuesday) morning and obliged to stand, being told by a policeman in attendance that there were no chairs to be had, subsequent to which very many persons (male and female) came in and were beckoned to and seated by the above-named gentlemen. FAIR PLAY.

Modern Women.

It is a sad commentary upon our boasted civilization that the women of our times have degenerated in health and physique until they are literally a race of invalids—pale, nervous, feeble, and back-achy, with only here and there a few noble exceptions in the persons of the robust, buxom ladies characteristic of the sex in days gone by. By a very large experience, covering a period of years, and embracing the treatment of many thousands of cases of those ailments peculiar to women, Dr. PIERCE, of the World's Dispensary, Buffalo, N. Y., has perfected, by the combination of certain vegetable extracts, a natural specific, which he does not extol as a cure-all, but one which admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most positive and reliable remedy for those weaknesses and complaints that afflict the women of the present day. This natural specific compound is called Dr. PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION. The following are among those diseases in which this wonderful medicine has worked cures as if by magic, and with a certainty never before attained by any medicines: Weak back, nervous and general debility, falling and other displacements of internal organs, resulting from debility and lack of strength in natural supports; internal fever, congestion, inflammation, and ulceration, and very many other chronic diseases incident to women, not proper to mention here, in which, as well as in the cases that have been enumerated, the FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION effects cures—the marvel of the world. It will not do harm in any state or condition of the system, and by adopting its use the invalid lady may avoid that severest of ordeals—the consulting of a family physician. FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION is sold by dealers in medicines generally.

As Good as New.

The above expression is peculiarly applicable to the individual whose system has been renovated by HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. If any man or woman in this community has a friend suffering from the various pangs which indigestion, nervous disease, weak back, or kidney trouble can inflict, the most rational advice he or she can give is, "Procure the Bitters at once, and use them regularly." If this advice is heeded, we guarantee that in a short time the invalid will feel "as good as new," so marked and so rapid will be the change for the better wrought by this peerless invigorant, nervine, and diuretic. It not only re-establishes digestion and stimulates the organs of urination into healthful activity, but expels by the natural outlets of the body those acrid elements in the secretions which, when absorbed into the blood, produce rheumatism, gout, and neuralgia. Moreover, its gentle though effective action admirably fits it for the use of females in delicate health, who require a tonic stimulant and corrective.

ANCIENT HISTORY FROM THE MONUMENTS.

From the London Graphic.

These little volumes contain more solid information than half a dozen ordinary histories. Written with the utmost brevity and plainness, their object is simply to recount the story of these three early Empires as far as possible from the monuments, where the monuments fail for the best ancient historians. The monuments, again, furnish the material for the introductory chapters in each case, on the manners, belief, and character of the people, and for incidental notices scattered through the pages. Daring speculation is studiously avoided. * * * Manuals like these furnish the student, uncertain what he may believe or not, with something like a solid foothold.

Dr. Johnson says of Mrs. Carter, that she could both translate Epictetus and make a pudding, and write a Greek poem as well as embroider a handkerchief. For the entertainment of this class of persons, the present work has been compiled. While it will be found of great practical utility, it aims to be more than a mere cook-book, since it contains much curious and instructive matter in relation to the gastronomic habits and peculiarities of all times and all countries.—Extract from Preface.

In the Circuit Court of the United States Southern District of New-York.

IN THE MATTER OF THE SALE OF

THE NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD,

UNDER DECREE OF FORECLOSURE.

NOTICE OF SALE.

Whereas, in a certain action pending in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New-York, sitting in equity, wherein Jay Cooke, Charlemagne Tower, J. Fraley Smith, Theodore Hosmer, William S. Lane, and William A. Griswold are complainants, (together with Charles D. Drake, John R. Wheat, and Ellen Meline, who have been admitted as complainants therein,) and "The Northern Pacific Railroad Company" is defendant, the said court did make and enter a certain decree on the twelfth day of May, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five. And, whereas, by said decree the court did order, adjudge, and decree that all the right, title, interest, claim, estate or demand whatsoever, which the said "The Northern Pacific Railroad Company" has, or may at any time hereafter acquire or become in any way entitled to, of, in, and to all the lands and sections of lands situate, lying, and being on either side of the railroad of said company, and the branch thereof, as the same may be finally located and constructed in accordance with the said acts of Congress and the supplements thereto, in or through the States of Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Oregon, and the United States Territories of Dakota, Montana, Idaho, and Washington, making in the aggregate about sixty millions of acres of land, more or less, and also all the right of way and railroad and branches thereof authorized by the said act of Congress and the acts and resolutions supplementary thereto, constructed and to be constructed, under the said act in the said States and Territories, and all engines, cars, and rolling stock which the said "The Northern Pacific Railroad Company" may have at any time placed upon the said railroad for the use and operation thereof, together with all the rights, liberties, franchises, including the franchise to be a corporation, and property of every description, to the said "The Northern Pacific Railroad Company," belonging or in anywise appertaining to the said railroad under or by virtue of the said acts and resolutions of the Congress of the United States, with all accessions thereto at the time of the sale thereof (except the lands and land grants which are therein specially provided for) be sold in one entire parcel, as an entirety, under direction of Oliver Fiske and Kenneth G. White, Esqs. as Master Commissioners, at public auction, in front of the Custom House in the City of New-York, in the State of New-York, on the first Monday of August, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five, and that upon confirmation of such sale by the court, and receiving the purchase money therefor, the said Masters shall convey the same by good and sufficient conveyances to the purchaser or purchasers, and such sale and conveyance so made shall convey all the right, title, estate, interest, and property of the said "The Northern Pacific Railroad Company," in and to the said railroad, premises, franchises, and property above mentioned and described to the said purchaser or purchasers, in fee simple forever, and shall be a perpetual bar, both in law and equity against the said "The Northern Pacific Railroad Company" and its successors and assigns, and against all and every person claiming or to claim the said premises or any part thereof under them forever, and against each and every the defendants in this action; and the said defendants shall be forever foreclosed from all equity of redemption in said premises and every part of the same.

And that at the sale of the property of said "The Northern Pacific Railroad Company" of its railroad, equipments, appurtenances, the said Jay Cooke and Charlemange Tower, their successors, or successor in said trust, as Trustees, may bid for and purchase, or cause to be bid for and purchased, the property so sold, in behalf of all the holders of the bonds secured by said mortgage or deed of trust, and then outstanding in the proportion of the respective interests of such bondholders.

And, whereas by the said decree, the court did order, adjudge, and decree that at the time of said sale of railroad and equipments, as aforesaid, the purchaser or purchasers shall pay to said Masters the sum of at least one hundred thousand dollars in cash as part payment, to be forfeited in case of non-compliance with the terms of sale; and within sixty days thereafter or on final confirmation of said sale by this court, and at the delivery of the deeds therefor, the balance in cash; provided however, that in the payment of such balance, first mortgage bonds, which may have been sanctioned by the court, may be taken as cash, each bond in such case to be taken only for such an amount as would equal the dividend to which it would be finally entitled under the said decree.

Now, therefore, in pursuance of the provisions of the said decree we, the undersigned, the Master Commissioners as aforesaid, will sell at public auction, in front of the Custom-house, in the City of New-York, on the first Monday of August, 1875, at 12 o'clock, noon, all the above described property, (except the lands and land grants which are in said decree specially provided for,) in one parcel as an entirety under the terms and conditions of sale as above prescribed by said decree.

OLIVER FISKE,
KENNETH G. WHITE,

NOTE.—Lest some misunderstanding as to the above notice of sale may arise, the Master Commissioners hereby further state that the land grant of all lands, other than those situated on the completed portions of the road, was intended to be included in the sale, and said land grant will be sold with the road as one of its franchises.

OLIVER FISKE,
KENNETH G. WHITE,

THE CONTESTS TO COME OFF AT JEROME PARK TO-DAY—SALE OF POOLS LAST NIGHT—BETTING ON THE SARATOGA RACES.

The Spring meeting of the American Jockey Club will close with to-day's racing, and will terminate the most successful reunion of the club since its organization. It will only require fine weather to make this day a memorable one in a racing point of view as well as in the attendance of spectators. The programme affords an excellent opportunity for five excellent contests. The opening event is a purse of $500 for three-year olds which have not won this year, dash of one mile, and in this are D. McDaniel's Mattie A., by Australian, out of Minnie Mansfield; August Belmont's ch. f. Caroline, by Kentucky, out of imported Camilla; John O'Donnell's ch. c. Milner, by imported Leamington, dam by Lexington, and R. W. Cameron's b. c. Bayminster, by Warminster, out of Stolen Kisses. All these possess great speed, and a fast mile may be readily anticipated. The second race is a purse of $1,200, for all ages. Three miles. The winner of the Westchester Cup or Woodburn Stakes to carry 5 pounds extra. In this there are three entries, viz.: D. McDaniel's ch. h. Springbok, 5 years, 114 pounds; Robinson, Morgan & Co.'s b. c. Bigfellow, 4 years, and M. A. Littell's b. h. Wild Idle, 5 years, 114 pounds. The latter horse has shown such good form this year that he has many friends to back him at the odds against so great a horse as Springbok. The race will doubtless be interesting, and Springbok will have to extend himself. The third race is the Consolation Purse of $400, for horses which have run and have not won any race at this meeting. Three-quarters of a mile. The following nine have been entered: Bob Woolley, 3 years, 90 pounds; Countess, 4 years, 105 pounds; Willie Burke, 3 years, 90 pounds; Dublin, 4 years, 108 pounds; Risk, 3 years, 90 pounds; Vinaigrette, 3 years, 87 pounds; Fadladeen, aged, 118 pounds; Free Lance, 5 years, 114 pounds, and Inspiration, 4 years, 105 pounds. The fourth is a free handicap sweepstakes of $25 each if not declared out, with $500 added, the second horse to receive $125 out of the stakes. One mile and an eighth. There will be the following eight starters, viz.: B. F. Carver, 5 years, 110 pounds; Kadi, 6 years, 110 pounds; Dublin, 4 years, 104 pounds; Mollie Darling, 4 years, 95 pounds; Mattie W., 4 years, 90 pounds; Mattie A., 3 years, 90 pounds; Meco, 3 years, 84 pounds, and Risk, 3 years, 80 pounds. The day's sport is to conclude with a handicap steeple-chase, purse $800, of which $200 to the second horse. About two miles and a half, over the regular steeple-chase course. The entries are Lawrence & Lorillard's ch. g. Bullet, 6 years, 163 pounds; A. H. Torrence's ch. g. Trouble, 5 years, 158 pounds; George Ayres' b. g. Diavolo, 5 years, 152 pounds; A. P. Green's b. m. Daylight, 5 years, 140 pounds; A. D. Brown's b. h. Coronet, 140 pounds, and Joseph Donahue's br. g. Deadhead, 4 years, 140 pounds; and also Stanford, 5 years, 135 pounds. This should be an exciting event, and there will be especial interest in the meeting of Bullet, Diavolo, and Trouble. The Jockey Club rooms and the Turf Exchange were crowded to excess last night with speculators, and a very large amount of money found its way into the pool-boxes. RIFLE SHOOTING AT CREEDMOOR.

THIRD PRACTICE DAY BY DETACHMENT OF THE THIRD BRIGADE—GOOD SHOOTING BY THE IRISH AMERICAN RIFLE CLUB AND COMPANY D, TWELFTH REGIMENT.

In spite of the rainy weather yesterday, during the early parts of the day, nearly all of the regiments in the Third Brigade complied with the general order directing them to proceed to Creedmoor, for rifle practice. The First Battalion Infantry was represented by Companies B and G, comprising twenty-five men, under the command of Major Eugene Mix. The Eighth Regiment turned out forty-three men, forming Companies G and H, under the command of Capt. R. V. Young, assisted by Col. Scott and Major Davenport, and the Fifty-fifth Regiment, Companies H and I, paraded thirty-four men, under command of Capt. J. Hoy, assisted by Col. Edward Gilon. The Ninth Regiment was represented by only five men, who expected to have joined their companies, previously ordered out. The Third Regiment Cavalry was not represented, as Major Parker, Inspector of Rifle Practice, of the First Division, instructed Col. Budke to countermand the order directing three companies to parade, and postpone the practice until another day. Col. Wingate has requested Major Gen. Shaler to permit the three companies of this regiment who were prevented from shooting on Thursday to parade next week for the same purpose. It will be remembered that, through the negligence of the Ordnance Department, no ammunition was provided for carbines on that occasion. The several squads commenced shooting shortly before noon at 100 yards distance, at the conclusion of which they proceeded to the 150 yards range, which terminated the first class. All the men who had made a score of twenty-five out of a possible fifty were considered qualified to shoot in the second class, comprising the 200 and 500 yards ranges. Of this number the First Battalion furnished six; the Eighth Regiment, nineteen, and the Fifty-fifth Regiment, four men. The following are the best scores:

BASE-BALL NOTES.

The game of base-ball announced to take place on the Union Grounds, in Brooklyn, E. D., yesterday afternoon, between the Chatham and Keystone clubs, of New-York City, failed to come off, owing to the threatening condition of the weather. The Chatham Club went over in the afternoon, but the heavy rain of the previous night had softened the ground, and the weather being still very threatening, it was thought best to defer the game, and it will probably take place next Tuesday.

This afternoon a game will be played on the Union Grounds between the Reliance Club, of New-York City, and the Union club, of Elizabeth, N. J. On Monday the Keystone and Reliance clubs, both of this City, will play a game on the Union Grounds.

On the Capitoline Grounds, in Brooklyn, on Thursday, an interesting game, the first for the amateur championship, was played between the Flyaway Club of this City and the Chelsea Club of Brooklyn, in the presence of a large crowd of people. It was won by the Chelsea Club, the score standing eight to seven, as follows:

INTERNATIONAL SWIMMING MATCH.

Yesterday afternoon all arrangements were completed for another "international" swimming match for $2,000 and the championship of the world between J. B. Johnson, the champion of England, and Thomas Coyle, of Chester, Penn., the "champion of America." They are to swim from Chester to Philadelphia, (sixteen miles,) and the one who gets nearest to Philadelphia to be declared the winner. The contest is to take place on July 16. Both men are excellent swimmers, and much interest will be manifested in the result.

CRICKET NOTES.

To-day the famous Young America Cricket Club, of Philadelphia, now reorganized, will play a match game with the St. George Club, of this City, for the championship of America, on the latter's ground at Hoboken, N. J. The last match between these celebrated clubs was played in Philadelphia in 1873, when the St. Georges were victorious by six wickets. The St. George eleven will be Messrs. Bance, Bowman, Cashman, Gibbs, Jones, Marsh, Meeran, Sleigh, Sutter, Westfeldt, and Giles. The Young America eleven will be Messrs. George, Harry, Dan, and Robert Newhall, Large, Bussier, Clark, Baird, Morgan, Meade, and Davis. Much interest is taken in the match, and the players include some of the best in the country.

TWEED STILL ON THE ISLAND.

There were no new developments in the City yesterday in reference to the release of Tweed, or in regard to the prosecution of other members of the Ring. It does not seem probable that any further action will be taken in the case of Tweed until the remittitur is served upon the Warden of the Penitentiary. The delay, as was stated yesterday, is said to be owing to the trouble in procuring the bail required, and in the preparation of the necessary papers. There is also said to be something wrong in the legal phraseology of the official order of discharge by the Court of Appeals which tends to keep matters in statu quo. Mr. Wheeler H. Peckham is now in Albany. His assistants in the Bureau of Municipal Correction stated that they were not informed as to the particular business which he was called upon to attend to in Albany, but they supposed that it was in relation to some suits other than those of the Ring, which were before the Court of Appeals, and in which he was interested. Inquiries were made at the offices of the District Attorney, ex-Attorney General Barlow, and Sheriff Conner, but no news of fresh interest could be gathered. It is probable from present indications that Tweed will not leave the island until Monday. Mr. David Dudley Field, the prisoner's counsel, is doing everything in his power to facilitate proceedings favorable to his client. Tweed confined himself to his room throughout yesterday, and declined to see any visitors, with the exception of Mr. Foster Dewey, who arrived on the island by the 10:30 A. M. boat, and remained closeted with Tweed for over an hour. Owing to the fact that the order of discharge is momentarily expected. Warden Fox has been obliged to refer the supervision of all outside work of the institution to his deputy, in order that he might be ready at any moment to receive it, and release the "ex-statesman." Deputy Sheriff McGonigal remains on the Island both day and night, and has been instructed not to leave without his prisoner.

THE ROMAN CATHOLICS AND THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the American and Foreign Christian Union, held in the Bible House 10th instant, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, This union was originally formed and has thus far existed for the purpose of extending the knowledge of Divine truth in communities nominally Christian, and for the advancement of the cause of civil and religious liberty throughout the world; and its attention having been directed to the encroachments of the Roman Catholic Church upon the institutions which we have in this country regarded as identified with our liberties; and

Whereas, The recent attempt is noticed of the Vicar General, and others of the Roman Catholic Church, to obtain the funds of the people for the support of their sectarian schools, in which their political and religious doctrines may be taught to the youth of this City at the public expense; therefore, be it

Resolved, 1. That this Union, in behalf of all the friends of civil and religious liberty, and of all who hold to the equal rights of all religious denominations before the laws of the State, does emphatically protest against the direct or indirect use of the school funds for the support or aid in any way of the parish schools of any sect whatever; and

2. That the principles set forth by the authorities of the Roman Catholic Church in their official and recent publications, in regard to the relations of Church and State, and the duty of the Church to direct the schools, and the denial of the right of the State to control the education of the young, make it imperative upon American citizens to resist in all suitable ways the manifest purpose of the Roman Catholic Church to disturb the noble public school system of the United States.

3. That the Secretary be directed to forward to the President of the Board of Education of this city, a copy of these resolutions, with the request that he will lay the same before the board; and that they be published in the Christian World, and transmitted to the newspapers for publication.

ST. MARY'S FREE HOSPITAL FOR CHILDREN.

The Trustees of St. Mary's Free Hospital for Children, no 407 West Thirty-fourth street, have resorted to a novel and interesting method of endeavoring to raise sufficient funds to build a new hospital. They have issued a large number of handsome cards, about the length and breadth of an ordinary brick, which will be sold at prices ranging from five cents to $5, according to the number of "bricks" required by the purchaser. Each card bears the signature of Bishop Potter and Miss Ellen Kemble, Treasurer of the institution, and is a certificate that the purchaser has placed a corresponding number of bricks in St. Mary's Free Hospital for Children. It is to be hoped that this and all other means employed for helping this valuable institution will be successful, and that the good Sisters who labor so zealously in ministering to the sick and needy will be enabled to carry out their charitable designs. In St. Mary's Free Hospital, which is intended exclusively for children, the little ones are received free of charge and attended in their fretful and trying illnesses by the patient Sisters, whose capability for skillful nursing is well known. Competent medical and surgical attendance is provided, and many difficult operations successfully performed. A large proportion of the little patients received during the past year were discharged cured and others were considerably relieved. The institution, having been managed with ability and excellent judgment, is now in a prosperous condition, and the demands on its accommodations are every day increasing. The Sisters suffer sadly from want of suitable accommodation, and the managers are now making laudable efforts to purchase the property in West Twenty-fourth street, at present occupied by the hospital, on which to erect their new building. Several prominent citizens have agreed to pay annual subscriptions toward the object for three years, and it is confidently hoped that the charitable public only need to have their attention directed toward the matter to make the Free Hospital for the little ones what its promoters wish it to be.

A FRIDAY EVENING SERMON AT PLYMOUTH CHURCH.

Plymouth lecture-room was crowded last evening even earlier than usual. Again there were no flowers on the pastoral table. Mr. Beecher entered five minutes before the hour. He looked to be in the best possible physical condition. After prayers by Brother Charles Morton and Assistant Pastor Halliday, and the singing of the 612th 1,182d, and 1,272d hymns, Mr. Beecher did a most unusual thing—took a text for his lecture. It was the following:

"Then Peter, turning about, seeth the disciple whom Jesus loved, following; which also leaned on his breast at supper, and said, Lord, which is he that betrayeth thee? Peter seeing him, saith to Jesus, Lord, and what shall this man do? Jesus saith unto him, If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee? Follow thou me."—John xxi., 20, 21 and 22.

On this he preached a sermon denunciatory of meddlesome persons—persons who are continually intruding into the secret life of others. An extraordinary feature of the discourse was that the Pastor's customary flow of language seemed to have deserted him. He hesitated at almost every sentence. The services closed with the 716th hymn and the "grace, mercy, and peace" benediction. A letter of dismissal was given to Brother Thomas H. Davis.

At the meeting of the Board of Aldermen, held last Monday, the Mayor sent in a list of nominations for members of the Board of Education. The names were not acted on, and it is said no action will be taken at the next meeting of the board. It is generally believed that the Democratic majority in the board are opposed to a number of the gentlemen whose names have been sent in by the Mayor.

Brooklyn politicians of the Democratic stripe are making great efforts to have Gov. Tilden sign the Charter Amendment bills. The first of these bills restores the old Board of Supervisors as a body separate from the Board of Aldermen, and the second takes away the power of nominations from the Mayor, and confers it on the Mayor, Auditor, and Controller.
